Hurricane Packing A Big Punch

MIAMI (UPI) — Hurricane Beulah, the killer of eight Caribbean islanders, skirted Puerto Rico early today and aimed its 100-mile-an hour winds at the mountainous southern coast of Haiti and the Dominican Republic.

An emergency hurricane warning was issued for the island of Haiti and the Dominican Republic after Beulah took a more west-northwesterly track during the night and gained strength. The season's second hurricane was expected to grow even stronger later today.

IN DANGER

"Haiti and the Dominican Republic are in danger and residents of the island are urged to keep in close touch with advisories until the emergency is over," forecasters said.

Hurricane Beulah—born out of a tropical depression Thursday —inundated Fort de France,, the capital city of the Martinique islands, Friday and killed eight persons as it began a slow trip up the island chain on the eastern edge of the Caribbean Sea.

Meanwhile, tropical storm Chloe remained far out at sea and its 50 mph winds were not expected to endanger any land area for several days.

OFF SAN JUAN

At 6 a.m., EDT, Hurricane Beulah was centered near latitude 15.6 north and longitude 65.0 west, or about 200 miles south-southeast of San Juan, P.R. It was moving west-northwesterly at 11 mph.

Weathermen were also keeping an eye on a tropical depression off the south Florida coast near Vero Beach. This depression had top winds of 30 mph, but was not expected to intensify.

Beulah was fanning gale-force winds 125 miles out from its center and weathermen warned that although Beulah is a well-developed hurricane, "a further increase in intensity is expected today."

Beulah, which left Fort de France under three feet of water and damaged much of the island's telephone and utility system, was expected to pass about 100 miles south of Ponce, P.R., later today and fan the island with 50 mph winds.

Test Before Tribunal Is Probable

SACRAMENTO (AP) — The Reagan administration prepared a counter legal fight today in hopes of reviving its planned $200 million cut in Medi - Cal, the state's health care program for the needy.

Spencer Williams, state health and welfare chief, said he would appeal immediately a Sacramento judge's ruling yesterday that the economies were illegal.

As of today, about 1.5 million Californians still are legally entitled to all the benefits they had under the program before the cutbacks were announced last month.

Meanwhile, Assembly Democrats accused the GOP administration of "wasteful and incompetent management" of Medi-Cal.

Assemblyman Winfield A. Shoemaker, chairman of the Assembly Democratic caucus, said Williams' appointment by Gov. Ronald Regan was "a political consolation prize. It is not surprising that the program was going broke."

Williams, former Santa Clara County counsel, was the unsuccessful Republican candidate for attorney general last year.

Judge Irving H. Perluss issued an injunction Friday preventing the state from putting the cutbacks into effect as planned, effective Sept. 1.

U.S. Counters Base Attack With Heavy Bombing Raids

SAIGON (UPI) — American B52 Stratofortresses and fighter-bombers teamed up with U.S. Navy ships off the coast of Vietnam to pound Communist buildups along the demilitarized zone (DMZ), military spokesmen said today.

The air-sea bombardments, which sent tons of high explosive bombs and shells into the DMZ and its northern and southern edges, came within hours of twin Communist rocket attacks on the big American air base at Da Nang and the Marine outpost at Con Thien. At least one American was killed and 55 wounded by the rocket raids.

American warplanes staged 146 missions over North Vietnam yesterday, hitting roads, bridges and antiaircraft positions and rail lines within 21 miles of the Communist Chinese border, spokesmen said.

The biggest concentration of destructive might was aimed at the DMZ area where the North Vietnamese have massed three divisions. The buildups seriously threaten American positions just below the DMZ.

The cruiser USS St. Paul and the destoyer USS Du Pont blasted 11 coastal defense sites and eight antiaircraft positions at Cap Lay, just north of the DMA, spokesmen said.

Communist guerrillas today sent about six rounds of 140 mm rocket fire into the Da Nang Air Base, apparently hoping to duplicate their devastating July 14 rocket attack against the base.

Four rounds hit near a U.S. Air Force housing area, killing one American. Spokesmen said two warp,anes were slightly damaged in the attack.

Neither today's attack on Da Nang nor another one earlier this week was as damaging as the Communist rocket assault July 14 that left 13 Americans dead and 110 wounded. That raid also inflicted $50 million in damage on warplanes used to fly raids against North Vietnam.

Reagan Emerges From Legislative Veto Session Without A Scratch

SACRAMENTO (UPI)— Gov. Ronald Reagan, who generally got his way in the legislature's seven-month regular session, today survived a five-day veto session without a political scratch.

Although they tried repeatedly, Democrats failed to break solid Republican resistance to 10 attempts at overriding the the Republican governor's vetoes.

Paul Beck, the governor's press secretary, said Reagan was "pleased the legislature saw fit to uphold his vetoes." He had used his veto power on 83 bills and 53 budget items.

The state's first veto session in history, convened Monday under a new constitutional provision, ended yesterday. The Assembly adjourned first, at 1:10 p.m., and the Senate gavel dropped at 2:47 p.m.

The only major accomplishment was passage in a special session called by Reagan to run concurrent with the veto session of a bill to correct a $51 million error in a measure passed during the regular session. The bill boosts state support to local schools by a record $45 million this fiscal year.

As a result, some lawmakers frankly felt the veto session, approved by the voters in the 1966 general election was a waste of time.

Republicans, who held enough votes in both the Senate and the Assembly to deny a veto override, voted as a solid bloc to turn aside 10 Democratic attempts. Democrats have a 42-38 majority in the Assembly but the Senate is a 20-20 standoff. Republican Lt. Gov. Robert H. Finch could cast a tie-breaking vote.

Assemblyman Patrick D. McGee, R-Van Nuys, announced he would introduce a constitutional amendment next year to abolish the veto session. He called it a "useless exercise in futility."

Unruh said Democrats were unable to get the two-thirds vote in both houses needed to override a veto "because the governor put the partisan heat on."

Romney Charges Real Vietnam Facts Secret

Guns Silent In Mideast's Tension Areas

U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Guns were reported quiet along the Arab-Israeli fire lines today for the first time since Monday.

The lull followed at least a half-dozen serious shooting incidents along the Suez Canal and the Jordan River between Israeli forces and Egyptian and Jordanian troops.

Each side has accused the other of triggering the clashes in an attempt to provoke a new crisis in the Middle East before the U.N. General Assembly convenes Sept. 19.

AIR ATTACK

Yesterday, Cairo radio accused Israel of violating the cease-fire by sending three planes over Egyptian antiaircraft guns drove the three planes back across the canal. Israeli forces opened fire on Green Island. No casualties were reported.

Israeli authorities said the Egyptians fired a "number" of mortar rounds at a "routine Israeli air patrol on the east bank of the canal.

Israeli troops overran the Sinai peninsula and swept to the east bank of the strategic waterway during the June 5-10 war.

U. N. SESSION?

In Jerusalem, officials said UAR President Gamal Abdel Nasser was trying to intensify tensions in hope of convening the U.N. Security Council.

These sources claimed that the Arab summit conference in Khartoum secretly agreed to launch an emergency campaign to build up diplomatic pressure for the withdrawal of Israel troops from occupied Arab territory.

LEAKY GAS VALVE ABOARD MOONSHIP

Soft Landing For Surveyor 5 Ruled Out; Decision Still Pending On Hard Landing

PASADENA (AP) — A leaky helium gas valve has prevented America's Surveyor 5 from making a soft landing on the moon, say scientists at the Jet Propulsion Laboratory.

A spokesman said early today scientists are considering either having the 2,200-pound craft make a hard landing or putting it into a high orbit around the Earth.

Flight engineers predicted that the helium would stop leaking about noon today. At that time, they said, the pressure in the fuel tank should be sufficient to stop the leak.

The spokesman said if the leak stops then, a decision for a hard landing would probably be made. If the helium continues to escape, the craft would probably be put into earth orbit and perform engineering tests and take color television pictures of Earth, he said.

The JPL spokesman said the decision may not be made until this afternoon if Surveyor's condition is not immediately clear.

The leakage developed after a routine midcourse correction was ordered, requiring the craft's three liquid fuel engines to be fired.

The spacecraft had been due to land on the moon—221,575 miles from Earth—Sunday afternoon.

He said its cameras might be of some use in taking Earth photographs, but its soil-testing equipment would be wasted.

Scientists said the helium tank's valve must be closed to preserve the helium, required to pressurize the liquid fuel in the spacecraft's three control rockets.

Without the control rockets, which would slow the spacecraft to a landing of 10 miles an hour or less, the vehicle would plummet at high speed into the lunar surface.

Surveyor's main thrust rocket can't slow the craft to less than 350 miles an hour, scientists explain.

No Fanfare Scheduled For Royalty

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — President Johnson's meeting with King Constantine of Greece will be strictly private and without fanfare, the Texas White House said today.

Johnson and the young monarch, who will visit Washington after a tour of Montreal's Expo 67, will meet at 12:30 p.m. Monday EDT at the White House for private talks. Then they will be joined by a select group of administration policymakers for private luncheon.

It had been expected earlier that Constantine would be guest of honor at a White House luncheon to which more than 100 guests would be invited.

Press Secretary George Christian, asked about the absence of such social doings, said it simply reflected "the wishes of the two governments."

Christian also was asked if Johnson would discuss with Constantine the plight of Andreas Papandreou, one-time American college professor and son of the former Greek premier ousted in a military coup.

"I'm just in no position to anticipate what the President and the King may discuss."

Papandreou faces treason charges. A number of prominent Americans have urged that the U.S. government use its good offices to obtain his release.

$8,500 LIMOUSINE

First Class Travel For Span Directors

An $8,500 Cadillac Fleetwood "is the most satisfactory and most economical car we can get," Golden Gate Bridge directors agreed yesterday in voting to buy the luxury sedan. (See other story, page 3.)

Directors voted without debate to buy the car, which will be used to chauffeur directors to meetings if they choose not to drive their own cars and get a mileage allowance. A Fleetwood model was specified, said director Dan E. London of San Francisco, "because it has more room in the back seat."

"No consideration was given" a lower cost vehicle, he told the Independent-Journal.

The sedan will replace a 4-year-old Chrysler Crown Imperial limousine.

Directors also authorized district employees to build a new conference table for the board room at a cost of $1,700. Seating 21 persons, the new table will replace a peeling 25-year-old table seating 15 persons.

The present walnut veneer table cost $1,500 new. It is too small to seat district staff with the 14 directors.

At the recommendation of their engineer, Robert E. Shields, directors also agreed to continue buying inorganic zinc coating for the bridge from Amercoat Corp. at $12.45 a gallon, instead of conducting competitive bidding and chance ending up with "an inferior product."

San Rafael Police Withhold Arrest Of Teens In Burglary

Four youths, who San Rafael police say have admitted burglarizing a Terra Linda home last Saturday, have purposely not been arrested, Chief Charles J. Chiesa said today.

Chiesa said this is a common practice in some instances because it can lead to solving other burglaries.

Inspector Richard Douglas, who is handling the case, said more can be gained by allowing the youths to remain free and "think about it for a while."

Douglas said that although an officer has the right to make an arrest on suspicion of a crime, he can wait, if he thinks there will be no danger of the suspect committing another crime or endangering the public safety.

"We have little games we play here that benefit us," he said.

The four, two of them from San Rafael, last Saturday abandoned a panel truck loaded with furniture taken from the Thomas Larkey home at 7 Canyon Oak Drive.

The inspector said the four were quickly identified from fingerprints left on the vehicle. After questioning them separately during the week, Douglas said, the quartet admitted responsibility, but were allowed to return home.

Douglas said he will seek a warrant for their arrest by the middle of next week.

"In the meantime," he said. "I can learn more than if I just book them outright."

He said one of the four has admitted two other burglaries in the San Rafael area and has returned some of the stolen property. "And another is coming in to see me Monday about something he forgot to mention last time," Douglas added.

Ignores Attack By Paper

WASHINGTON (AP)—Michigan Gov. George Romney accused President Johnson today of keeping the real facts of the Vietnam war from the American people by a "systematic continuation of inaccurate reports, predictions and withholding of information."

Romney, who has been advised by a home state newspaper to abandon his presidential ambitions, told a news conference this was what he had in mind when he said earlier in the week he had been "brainwashed" in a 1965 visit to Vietnam with other governors.

'SNOW JOB'

Saying that he would use the term again, Romney said what he meant was not the Russian type of brainwashing but what he called a "snow job" by the President and his representatives in Vietnam.

The Michigan governor, here for a meeting of the Republican National Committee, said the American people are "shocked that they can no longer rely on our own government to give them facts about Vietnam."

Romney dismissed as of no lasting significance an editorial to be published by the Detroit News suggested that he had zigzagged too much on Vietnam and other foreign policies, that he should withdraw from consideration for the nomination and support New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller.

PAPER ATTACK

The newspaper criticized what it called Romney's "blurt and retreat habit of dealing with Vietnam and other problems."

Although he has not officially announced his candidacy, Romney said he won't withdraw from the pre-convention political maneuvering.

Asked if he would support Rockefeller if he thought the New York governor had more backing within the party than he, Romney said that this would depend on factors at the time.

He said Rockefeller had assured him privately that he has no intention of becoming a candidate. He said he takes Rockefeller at his word.

Romney insisted that he has not changed his position on Vietnam. He said it remains exactly the same as it was in an April 7, 1967 speech in Hartford, Conn., in which he said among other things that it would be "unthinkable" that the United States would withdraw from Vietnam.

The News said Rockefeller, who has disclaimed any further presidential ambitions, "knows what he believes and has the capacity to express his convictions" and should be brought into the picture.

Romney's aides were not at all amused by this erosion of Michigan support for his as-yet-unannounced bid for the 1968 GOP nomination.

They said privately, and some

Patrick Firm Files Consent To Penalty

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — William Penn Patrick's Holiday Magic cosmetic firm yesterday consented to a $35,000 civil fraud penalty judgment in a consumer fraud suit filed against it by the attorney general's office.

The consent judgment was filed simultaneously with the suit in Superior Court.

The firm, with headquarters in San Rafael, is owned by Patrick, a conservative Republican who sought the GOP nomination for governor in 1966.

The suit charged the firm with misleading and false representations in newspaper ads in which it recruited distributors.

The suit said that the ads, which invited the public to attend so-called "opportunity meetings, falsely represented the potential income of the distributorships and failed to disclose that a substantial investment was required before becoming a distributor."

The attorney general's office said the suit was one in a number filed during the past year or so in an attempt to halt various sales schemes involving distributorships.

Antimissile System Urged For Security

GROTON, Conn. (UPI) — Chairman John O. Pastore of the Joint Atomic Energy Committee, citing Red China's rapid development as a nuclear power, today urged immediate deployment of an antimissile system.

"If we can afford to spend $24 billion a year in defense of a neighbor, and I mean Vietnam, we can certainly spend as much to insure the life and security of our American society," Pastore said.

The Rhode Island senator, in a speech prepared for the launching of the nuclear attack submarine Narwhal, said China's emergence as a thermonuclear power coupled with Russia's nuclear striking force make a U.S. antiballistic missile (ABM) system imperative.

"We cannot live in a world of atomic energy and discount completely the possibility of a surprise attack on our nation," Pastore said.

The Defense Department is still in the research and development phase of an ABM system, while the administration is working with Communist nations at Geneva in hopes of producing a treaty banning the spread of nuclear weapons.

"Our hopes and prayers are for a nonproliferation treaty," Pastore said. "But we must understand military power and constantly be aware of the capabilities of our potential enemies."

He referred to CIA and Defense Department testimony before his committee that the Chinese probably will achieve an operational Intercontinental Ballistic Missile (ICBM) capability before 1972, and conceivably as early as 1970-71.

New Services Area Studied

A county services area may be formed in Homestead Valley to provide a children's recreation program after school and on holidays.

A letter asking service area formation has been sent to the Marin County Board of Supervisors by Geoffrey F. Barrett, representing the Joint Committee for Recreation in Homestead Valley.

Pierre W. Joske, county director of parks and recreation, says the program will be conducted at Homestead Elementary School and at Brown's Hall. Total cost for the first year will be $3,175.

Joske estimates that this would mean 6.5 cents per $100 assessed valuation for taxpayers in the area.

Barrett asks that the county supervisors advance a loan to the area, since no area tax funds will be available until 1968.

Other Industries Feel Pinch Of Auto Strike

DETROIT (AP) — The United Auto Workers union strike against Ford Motor Co. already is affecting the national economy with layoffs in allied industries.

Some of Ford's other 7,000 suppliers said they had not been affected by the strike, but would be if it dragged on.

The 160,000 Ford employees at plants in 25 states walked off the job at midnight Wednesday when their work contract expired. No negotiations on a new contract have been scheduled but union and company representatives will meet Monday to set up a timetable for resumed bargaining.

The Budd Co., one of Ford's major suppliers laid off some 1,000 of its 5,000 workers yesterday at a Philadelphia plant where Budd makes stampings, tools and dies for Ford.

The Dana Corp. laid off 800 workers at its frame plants in the Detroit suburbs of Ecorse and Trenton.

The jobs of another 1,000 workers were imperiled at two Raybestos-Manhattan plants in Passaic, N.J., where Ford transmission parts are built.

Among the major vendors who said they would be hurt by a protracted strike were Bendix Corp., Kelsey-Hayes Co., Mcquay-Norris Manufacturing Co. and Aluminum Corp. of America.

Ford's vice president for public relations, Theodore H. Mecke Jr., said the firm probably will pare its advertising budget as a result of the strike.

Ford, ranked as the nation's fourth largest advertiser by the trade publication Advertising Age, spent an estimated $120 million on advertising in 1966, a large chunk of it in the fall when new models are introduced.

Production is continuing at General Motors and Chrysler, although their work contracts expired at the same time.

The union rescheduled from Sept. 23 to Oct. 8 a special convention to raise dues for bolstering the strike fund.

The union's secretary-treasurer, Emil Mazey, said yesterday the walkout would last "at least a month."

'Class' Case In Liability Car Insurance

UKIAH (UPI) — An obscure traffic accident now under consideration in the Mendocino County Superior Court today may result in administrative and even legislative changes in the state's automobile financial responsibility laws.

Superior Court Judge Wayne P. Burke has the action now under submission. It is called a "class" case because attorneys throughout the state have entered the picture to make it a "test" of the present law passed in 1948.

The law holds that all drivers must carry public liability insurance or be able to provide a bond showing financial responsibility in case of accidents. No matter how Judge Burke decides in the present case, it will be appealed to higher courts.

The accident in question occurred in May, this year, on State Highway 20 near Lake Mendocino. The car driven by Samuel Werner, about 60, Upper Lake, a welfare recipient, was struck by a truck owned by C. D. Mathis, Ukiah, and driven by G. S. Gallinger, Ukiah.

Werner had no liability insurance and was unable to produce a bond because he had no money. His driving license was suspended automatically because the insurance carrier on the truck refused to sign a release unless such a bond was posted.

OVER 60 AAMCO SHOPS IN CALIFORNIA

Senator Sets The Political Stage For A New 'Brainwashing' Movie

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Margaret Chase Smith can see it now: "Brainwashing," the theater marquee would read, with an all- Republican cast—Shirley Temple, Ronald Reagan, George Murphy.

"I think maybe we have a thing going on this issue of brainwashing," the Maine senator told the Republican National Committee yesterday. Michigan Gov. George Romney raised the issue this week, charging the Johnson administration once brainwashed him into endorsing U.S. involvement in Vietnam.

As Sen. Smith saw it, the whole thing ought to be in pictures, along with a number of prominent Republicans.

"Our supply of available brains is unlimited," she said. Mrs. Smith envisioned no personal role in the make-believe movie she joked about. She said she has stayed away from Saigon—the scene of the brainwashing according to Romney.

"I don't want to be brainwashed," she said.

But she saw ample room on the set for some party colleagues.

Shirley Temple Black, now running for Congress in California, could be the female lead, she said. The leading men: Reagan, now governor of California, and Murphy, now a senator from the same state.

Sen. Smith suggested that Sen. Charles H. Percy of Illinois, once president of Bell & Howell Co., supply the cameras and some film at a discount.

New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller, she said, would produce and finance the film. She chose former Vice President Richard M Nixon as "our Max Factor" and makeup man; and Barry Goldwater, "with his deft touch," as director.

Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen would be in charge of sound effects and dramatic coaching.

For Romney, Mrs. Smith reserve a role as technical adviser and scenario writer.

She didn't mention a spot for one prominent Republican who figures in the Romney situation —Henry Cabot Lodge. He was U.S. ambassador to Saigon when Romney went there two years ago.

Canton Now Under Strict Martial Law

HONG KONG (UPI)—The southern Chinese city of Canton, scene of bitter fighting between supporters and opponents of Chinese Communist party chief Mao Tse-tung, has been put under strict martial law, anti-Communist newspapers in Hong Kong said today.

Peking Radio claimed an American-made U2 spy plane operated by the Nationalist Chinese was shot down over eastern China. The broadcast said a unit of the Communist Chinese air force brought down the high-flying U2 but did not indicate whether it was hit in aerial combat or by ground fire.

Hong Kong newspapers, quoting reports of recent arrivals from the China mainland, said regular army troops have taken over police duties in riot-torn Canton, South China's largest city.

Travelers said the soldiers had orders to shoot on sight anyone carrying weapons.

They said some anti-Maoists still staged raids against army units in Canton, but the army has repulsed several recent attacks.

The papers quoted the travelers as saying army troops in Canton were ordering persons en route to Hong Kong to say nothing of the violence in the city. Some said they were given handbills instructing them to report conditions in Canton have returned to normal. That was far from the case, they said.

Strawberry, Novato Areas Lead Tax Rate

A small portion of Strawberry and an area in Novato have the highest tax rates for the 1967-68 fiscal year, according to figures compiled by County Auditor-Controller Michael Mitchell.

A portion of the Strawberry area which includes a special assessment for dredging has an overall tax rate of $11.835 per $100 assessed valuation. A part of Novato which includes an additional maintenance district has a tax rate of $11.59. Mill Valley, San Anselmo and Terra Linda are close behind.

The lowest rates, as usual, are in portions of West Marin where there is a minimum of special districts. A part of Tomales Bay area has a rate of $6.365 and the Point Reyes area, $5.82.

"Overall, the average tax rate in the county has risen from $10.61 last year to $10.67," Mitchell reports.

"If the assessed valuation of a taxpayer's property remained the same, the taxes required, generally, would be very comparable to the previous fiscal year. However, in view of the fact that the majority of assessments were increased, and since most of the political entities did not reduce their tax rates proportionately to the assessed valuation increase, the majority of taxpayers will be subject to a substantial increase in property taxes."

For illustrative purposes, the auditor-controller took a $27,500 (approximate countywide average) home and computed the taxes to be paid in 16 representative code areas of the county this year:

New Span Commute Ticket Study Set

Golden Gate Bridge and Highway District directors yesterday agreed to study a proposal to honor commuters' tickets only if two or more persons are in a car.

Meeting first as the district finance committee, directors also agreed, at Bridge Mgr. James Adam's suggestion, to study increasing the cost of commute tickets. Tickets cost 13 cents each, half the full fee.

Adam, after the meeting, told the Independent-Journal that it costs the district 21 cents to handle each of some 20,000 commuters' cars, thus the district loses eight cents on each ticket trip.

"We'd like to make our cost," he said.

If the cost of commute books is increased, said director Thomas D. Hardcastle of Marin, the increase in revenue "should go toward developing a modern bus transit system in Marin County."

Directors did not react to his recommendation.

The proposal to penalize commuters who drive alone was explained by its author, director Dan E. London of San Francisco, as a way "to encourage commuters to team up together and relieve congestion." He proposed this for peak commuter hours on weekdays.

Golden Gate Bridge and Highway District directors also;

BRIDGE CHECKUP — Invited New York engineers Ammann and Whitney to draft proposal on cost and scope of thorough checkup of the 30-year-old bridge's structural strength.

MILITARY TRAFFIC — Received report from Adam that toll-free traffic increased 31.2 per cent in past year because of "Vietnam war activity."

REMODEL FEES — Refused to make final $49,457 payment to Arnst Bros., contractor for remodeling of district administration building, pending correction of "deficiencies" such as cracked plaster.

TOLL PLAZA — Put off plans to add 12 toll booths pending completion of plans for a second deck.

Turkey Farm Use Permit Being Sought

A turkey breeder, who wishes to conduct research on egg-laying, will ask the Marin County Planning Commission Monday for a farm use permit.

The commission meeting will begin at 9 a.m. in the Civic Center administration building.

Nicholas Turkey Breeding Farms Inc. wants to conduct research during summertime on a 200-acre parcel between Dillon Beach and Tomales, at Beach and Valley Ford roads.

Plans are to build 22 structures and a home for the foreman.

The controversial West Marin Master Plan will be discussed by the commission in the afternoon. The density issue under the plan and proposed interim zoning for the Point Reyes National Seashore area were referred back to the commission by the board of supervisors.

Proposed rezoning of the Black Point and East Novato areas, which had been scheduled for discussion Monday, is off until Sept. 15 so that the Novato Planning Commission can discuss it.

Garage Gutter In Marinwood

A garage adjoining the home of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert E. Hart at 2164 Danberry Lane, Marinwood, was gutted by fire yesterday afternoon.

A fireman said a wiring short circuit started the blaze. The garage, valued at $5,000, was a total loss. Household furnishings stored in the garage also were destroyed.

The house suffered minor smoke damage.

New Charges In Ambulance Controversy

Doctors Ambulance Service Ltd., a new firm serving San Rafael and Alto areas, is charging United Ambulance with "complete disregard of any moral obligation" to Marin citizens by suddenly cancelling all police call emergency service on Sept. 2.

United Ambulance withdrew police call service on Sept. 2 to protest the one-day-off and one-day-on arrangement worked out by the county for the two ambulance companies.

Kenneth M. Hale, administrator of Doctor's Ambulance, sent a letter to Asst. County Administrator John F. Barrows condemning the action of United. The supervisors will discuss the ambulance question Tuesday.

Hale asks an agreement among all ambulance operators and the county for 45 days notice if an operator wishes to cease serving county communication center emergency calls in his assigned areas, and if the supervisors give permission to an additional operator to handle calls in an established response area, or if a new response area is added.

A bond should be posted by each operator guaranteeing compliance with the provision to give notice of termination of service, says Hale.

Hale said his firm added equipment and made other arrangements to give his area adequate coverage since United pulled out.

"If the readmission of United Ambulance to the communication center rotation is immediately brought about, it will result in undeserved financial loss to our company," says Hale.

South Pacific Week Opens At Northgate

Balloons, thousands of them, sailed up from the Northgate Shopping Center in San Rafael this morning to open "South Pacific Week" at the fashion mall.

The greatest variety of Australian products ever available at one place in the United States — from fashions to wood carvings —have been assembled to make shopping there like shopping in South Pacific cities, according to the Australian Department of Trade, sponsor of the week-long events.

Scheduled through next Saturday, the displays will introduce many Australian products to Marin residents before the Australian Trade Show in Los Angeles this November.

In addition to the variety of merchandise displayed, visitors and shoppers can look for many colorful games and programs around the center.

Live kangaroos and koalas, travel films, booths, Maori dancers and a fly casting contest with a first prize fishing trip to New Zealand plus $1,400 headline the daily programs.

Beginning Monday, store window displays and interiors will begin the South Pacific theme. Travel films will be shown at 11:30 a.m., 1 p.m. and 3 p.m. at the Emporium, and travel information will be available throughout the mall.

Beginning Wednesday, a daily schedule of special events will continue throughout the week.

Excavation Work Hurried

Archaeologists are working feverishly this weekend to complete excavation of an ancient Indian site at the end of Blackfield Drive in Tiburon before bulldozers move in Monday.

David A. Frederickson, assistant professor of anthropology at Sonoma State College, said his crew will have completed its work by tomorrow night.

Bulldozers are to start work Monday on a road at the site, but a small area will be left for a few days for further investigation.

Archaeology students have been working at the site this week, and sleeping there on guard at night.

Frederickson estimated 12 skeletons have been found in the Indian graveyard, along with many artifacts, which he figures date back to 500 B.C. or earlier. He said it is the oldest Indian site known to have been uncovered in Marin.

Former Assembly Floor Leader Is Dead; Probe Made

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The former floor leader of the California Assembly — 72-year-old Harold K. Levering — has been found shot to death in his Bel Air home.

Police say they are investigating the possibility of the conservative Republican's dying by suicide. A note was found.

Levering, whose body was found yesterday, was the author of the state loyalty oath that was declared unconstitutional this year.

He had represented Santa Monica Bay's 60th district from 1948 to 1963 and authored the bill closing the Santa Monica Bay to off-shore drilling by the state.

In 1962, the Republican decided not to seek re-election and unsuccessfully campaigned for Assemblyman Joe Schell against former Vice President Richard Nixon in the state's gubernatorial primaries.

SEW SIMPLE

You Line Bonded Material According To Dress Style

By EUNICE FARMER

Please tell me if it is necessary to line a dress when the material has a bonded backing.—MARY K.

DEAR MARY K.:

It depends on the reason the fabric has been bonded. Some of your very fine woolens which are loosely woven are bonded with a cheesecloth fabric just to keep the yarn on grain. In this case, you may line or underline depending on the style of the garment.

In your less expensive ready-to-wear you will find a great many garments made of bonded fabrics where no lining or underlining is used. For quick sewing and for children's clothes, it would be all right not to line. The bonding of fabrics has not been entirely successful; you may find it has separated. This usually will not happen in dry cleaning but when fabric is laundered.

Mrs. E. G. Brady, Harrodsburg, Ky., is this week's Tailor Trix pressing board winner for her suggestion on pressing napped fabrics.

If you don't have the proper equipment available for pressing velvets or napped fabrics, try the following method: Stand your iron on the end and cover it with a damp cloth. Then hold the fabric lightly and run the wrong side of the fabric across the iron. This will steam out wrinkles or press seams without harming the nap.

DEAR EUNICE,

It seems that I always have fabric left over if I buy the amount that is called for on the pattern. Is it wise to buy less than recommended? I hate to have leftovers. — MRS. T. H. H.

DEAR MRS. T. H. H.:

The amount of fabric needed for you as an individual could vary according to your height and the length you wish for a skirt. Several years ago we always thought of a skirt in terms of one yard. Today, many of you can make a skirt with 2/3 of a yard of fabric due to the length. If your pattern is a new one in the catalogue, the length adjustment has been made. If you are using an old pattern, it probably called for more than you would need today.

The width of fabric is also a guiding factor in the correct yardage needed. If your fabric is wider than average, you may save as much as one length. I would suggest you carefully measure the amount needed especially if you are considering an expensive piece of fabric.

There is one redeeming feature, however; today we find so many garments with contrasting panels or yokes, sleeves, or whatever, that you will find some great places to use those leftovers if you are clever. Many times a patched up look is more chic than a garment made in one color.

DEAR EUNICE,

In reading fashion news, I notice that they always refer to the size of the buttons by calling them "X" number of lines. How large a button would a 36 line button be? — MRS. D.F.

DEAR MRS. D. F.:

There are so very many sizes in buttons that a basic type measurement was necessary and is used throughout the industry as a uniform guide. The standard set up is 40 lines equals one inch. A size 30 is the size of a dime, a 36 the size of a nickel, size 45 is the size of a quarter.

Try to keep this part of my column in your reference file, and you will understand the sizing. Remember to make buttonholes ⅛ to ¼ inch longer than the button.

Now that we're all back at the sewing machine again with summer over, you will be faced with the necessity of setting in sleeves. You will find my leaflet, "All About Sleeves" most helpful because of the easy to follow, step by step instructions. Send a self-addressed, stamped envelope plus 10 cents to Eunice Farmer, in care of the Independent-Journal.

Gripping Theater In 'Philadelphia'

By KARL BARRON

Given a play which moves an audience to laughter and to tears, Jack Aranson and his City Theater Company cannot miss.

In Bryan Friel's "Philadelphia, Here I Come," Aranson has the wherewithall, plus the actor-manager's favorite background — Ireland. The result is an evening of gripping theater, in which Aranson's virtuoso performance is backed by a solid cast, well directed by John Beary.

"Philadelphia, Here I Come," sung to the tune of "California, etc.," brings us the last few hours Gareth O'Donnell spends in the tiny town of Ballybeg, County Donegal, before leaving to seek his fortune in America, and the emotions generated by his imminent departure.

ALTER EGO

His desperate needdto communicate with his father and others around him, and the unbreakable wall of reserve which prevents it is made clear to the audience by Gareth's alter ego, played by Aranson, a resident of Mill Valley. "The Private Gar" cannot be heard by anyone except "The Public Gar," played with finely understated emotional intensity by Kevin O'Sullivan.

It's difficult to describe the relationship of these two characters, for what sounds a bit ridiculous on the printed page works beautifully on stage. And by play's end we have learned Gar's life history through flashbacks, in addition to watching his development in the present.

Friel's recurrent theme that memory is a traitor serves to make the lack of communication almost inevitable. Only the private Gar has an accurate memory, and Aranson's brilliant performance is topped by the scene of total recall in which he describes a long past day of ifshing during which the public Gar believes he may have reached a rapport with his father.

UNIVERSAL THEME

Although the play is set in Ireland and Friel takes a few licks at Irish national characteristics, his theme is so universal that it might happen anywhere, and herein lies its great appeal.

A number of the actors have been in several of Aranson's previous productions, and in this one the company begins to show ensemble work — A togetherness which is theatrically effective.

Outstanding low key performances come from Pauline Hague and Walter McNally, while Etta Murphy is superb as the maudlin, guzzling aunt from Philadelphia who offers Gar a home — a home in which we know he will be stifled by an excess of the very affection he has lacked in Ballybeg. Also deserving mention aae performances by Connaght Davis and Daniel Downing.

The single set by William Stewart Jones is effective, using a separate level for Gar's bedroom, and allowing downstage room for transition scenes.

"Philadelphia, Here I Come" is being presented at the City Theater at 465 Post Street, San Francisco, Wednesday through Saturday at 8:30 p.m. and Sunday at 8 p.m., with a 2:30 p.m. matinee on Saturday.

Trial Is Set On Illegal Game Charge

Jury trial for Carnival Time Shows Inc. and two other defendants, all accused of illegally operating a game of chance at California Park May 12, was scheduled in Marin Municipal Court yesterday for Oct. 2.

The show, of Sonoma, and Jack Kent, manager, and A. J. Whelan, booth operator, allegedly ran a betting game called "Football" and involving only a "minimum" of skill, according to Deputy Dist. Atty. Joshua W. Thomas, who filed the complaint.

He said sheriff's officers received complaints, with one player reporting loss of $300 by doubling bets when losing.

The two-count complaint charges the defendants wrongly led players to believe it was a fair game of chance, and that they operated such a game.

Bench warrant for arrest of Whelan, who failed to appear in court yesterday, was issued by Judge Alvin H. Goldstein Jr.

Car Hits Tree, Three Injured

A broken tie rod was blamed for a single-car accident Thursday on Sir Francis Drake Boulevard in which three East Bay residents were injured.

California Highway Patrol reported that a car driven by Arthur Putnam Habegger, 22, of Berkeley, was eastbound, three miles west fo Camp Taylor at 6:05 p.m., when the left front tie rod broke, causing the car to swerve off the road, hit an apple tree and overturned.

Habegger was treated for cuts on his forehead at Marin General Hospital. His two passengers from Oakland, Karen Nyland, 23, and Michael Potts, 23, were treated for bruises at the hospital.

Car Wash Plans To Be Reviewed

The Mill Valley Planning Commission will again consider a use permit request by Ernest Crowley for a car wash at Locust and Miller avenues when it meets at 8 p.m. Monday in the city council chamber.

The commission recommended denial of the permit last month, but the council on appeal asked the planners to study the case again.

Also on the agenda is a request by Chicken Delight, 389 Miller Avenue, for a sign variance to allow exceeding the area and number of signs allowed by the sign ordinance.

'Antigone' Will Open Atheneum's Series Tomorrow

Jean Anouilh's "Antigone" opens the Atheneum's fourth annual Festival on the Mountain at 3:30 p.m. tomorrow at the Mount Tamalpais amphitheater.

The following Sunday, the five-week program will present "Dance of Two Cities," directed by Shela Xoregos. "A Celebration of a Poet," directed by Madeline Gleason, plays Sept. 24.

Following on Oct. 1, pianist Amparo Iturbi will be the featured artist. Performances by Eric Schwandt and Willene Gunn, accompanied by the Palo Alto chamber orchestra, will be included in the program.

Winding up the series Oct. 8, Duke Ellington and his Orchestra combine with dancers Shela Xoregos and Tommie Conine to perform in "Jazz on the Mountain." Brazilian guitarist, Bola Sete, and accompanists will be featured as guest artists.

Ex-Inmate Files $100,000 Suit Against Quentin

A former inmate has sued San Quentin Prison and the state for $100,000 because he was slugged and stabbed by an unidentified prisoner July 19, 1966.

Paul Snyder, 32, now serving a term for statutory rape in the state training facility at Soledad, charged he would not have been attacked had correctional officers supervised his cell block better.

Snyder, of Los Angeles County, was beaten and stabbed four times with a prison-made knife, according to a prison report at the time of the incident. He was then serving time as a parole violator off a sentence for rape.

Snyder's suit was filed Thursday in a Los Angeles superior court.

Elizabethan County Fair Set In Marin Next Month

Site preparations for the first "Renaissance Pleasure Faire and Ha'Penny Market" in Marin County began today, three miles north of the Civic Center off North San Pedro Road.

The event, recreating an Elizabethan country fair, will be held Oct. 7-8 and 14-15. It will benefit Berkeley educational radio station KPFA-FM.

The fair will feature strolling minstrels, jesters, jugglers, pipers, travelling merchants, dancers and mummers —all in costumes from that era. Handcrafts will be sold from medieval-style booths.

A stage modeled from that era was raised today. Celebrations during the fair will mark Robin Hood's birthday and the "arrival" of Sir Francis Drake, who discovered Marin County.

Hours for the fair will be 11 a.m. to dusk.

Creators-porducers are Ron and Phyllis Patterson of Los Angeles, who have staged a similar event there for another non-porfit radio station.

Tickets may be obtained by writing the fair at 2207 Shattuck Avenue, Berkeley, or at the gate.

Pair Indicted For Slayings

SUSANVILLE (AP)—The Lassen County Grand Jury has indicted two Redding brothers for murder in the August slayings of a Susanville ranch couple and a man from Hoopa.

Awaiting arraignment are William Tidwell Jr., 21, and his brother, Robert, 18, arrested in Redding on burglary charges last month.

They were indicted yesterday, after a two-day jury session, in the fatal shooting and stabbing of Mr. and Mrs. Levoy DeForest of Susanville and Kieth Utterback, a logger.

GLENWOOD FOREST
Perhaps we are a bit premature, but we have had so many inquiries from people expressing an interest in this beautiful quiet and secluded area, that we have opened a temporary office, and are now taking reservations on the limited number of breathtaking view sites and secluded sites which are encompassed by trees. The new model homes are not built, and the streets are not paved, but the sites are ready. Wear your old clothes because it is dusty. We are sure that when you see this exciting setting, which we feel is outstanding and cannot be duplicated, you will be pleasantly surprised.

Our salesmen will be on the site all day Saturday, Sunday, Sept. 9, 10, Sunday hours 9 - 10. During the following week by appointment. The phone at the site is 454-3768 or call 479-9611 for further information.

REMEMBER

the old brown shingle houses you used to find in small towns? They usually had a big front verandah, and like as not they'd have a couple of palms planted out in front for shade and decoration. Inside you'd find a big living room with a brick fireplace, a couple of bedrooms, and a big family kitchen. Naturally they all had a big back yard and a cellar to store preserves. Well, we've just found one that fits the whole description, and if you'd like to see it we'd be glad to show it to you this weekend. $18,750.

Land, Sea, Sky—All On A Summer's Day

An occasional cloud drifts across the cool, mill-pond of a bay that laps gently at the shores of Marin. And here, so near and yet so far from the teeming streets of San Francisco, people are deep in weekend relaxation along the waterways or high on the dark green, wooded slopes of Mount Tamalpais. In this aerial view, looking east, motorists appear no bigger than ants working their way along Highway 101 as are the arks dotting the banks of Corte Madera Creek, bottom left. This picture was taken shortly before the arks were recently removed to make way for work on the flood control project. To the right, a path runs across the ridge of Christmas Tree Hill, named because special street lights at Christmas time formed the shape of a tree when viewed from afar. (Aerial photo by Ed Brady)

JUST A TOURIST — Mrs. Ronald Reagan visits old governor's mansion in Sacramento before the historic home became a public tourist attraction today. The Reagans resided in the mansion very shortly before finding more modern quarters in February. (UPI Telephoto)

The Governor's Mansion Open To Public Tour

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The California governor's mansion, vacant since Gov. Ronald Reagan and his family moved into a rented home April 1, was opened today to guided tours for the general public.

For 25 cents, a tourist can view the first and second floors of the 89-year-old Victorian structure. The basement, third floor and cupola are not included in the tour.

ART GALLERY

A small gallery of photographs of the 13 governors and their wives who occupied the mansion is set up in the former carriage house.

The carriage house, which which most recently was used as a guard house, is the point from which tours are assembled.

A booklet distributed at the start of the tour notes that 11 of the 13 governors who lived in the mansion were Republicans and two Democrats.

It also contains a list of "mansion facts" which inform the tourist the mansion was built in 1877 as a home for hardware merchant Albert Gallatin.

FIRST USED

In 1905 the house was first used as the California executive mansion for Gov. George C. Pardee.

It was bombed in 1917 in an attempt to kill Gov. William D. Stephens, and "deemed unsuitable as residence" in 1941.

The Division of Beaches and Parks plans to conduct the tours through next June. They will be made permanent if the viewing the historic home proves successful.

The Reagan family moved from the mansion because Mrs. Reagan feared the old wooden building was a firetrap and there was no place in the busy commercial area surrounding the home for the Reagan's 9-year-old son to play.

However, Mrs. Reagan told a small group of state and city officials at dedication ceremonies Friday, "I'm very happy that this has come about and taken place with the old mansion. Even though we moved out we still have a very tender spot in our hearts for it."

Special Novato High Will Open On Monday

A high school for 15 pupils will open Monday in Novato.

Called Novato Continuation High School, it will serve students in four special categories: Those who have been suspended for more than 10 days; those who want to work half-time and go to school the minimum time of 180 minutes; a drop-out who wishes to return to school and, lastly, those students who, for various reasons, are "not making it" in regular school.

Principal Joseph D. Gargiulo explained this is the first continuation school in Marin to be set up in a separate building. Both San Rafael and Tamalpais high schools offer the services, either at night in the case of Tamalpais, or by day at San Rafael in regular school classrooms.

The Novato school is located in the air conditioned, former North Marin Water District building, at 856 Sweetser Avenue.

In addition to Gargiulo, who will teach job information and problems, Robert W. Wisgerhof is attached to the school as instructor and William Murray as psychologist.

Regular academic work will be taught but there will be no physical education since the school is too small and does not have such things as shower facilities. The school's approach centers around individual attention and has many materials designed for this way of teaching plus $1,000 in new audio-visual equipment.

Classes will be no larger than 15, said the principal, who for the past three years was vice principal at Novato High. Students, who represent only grades 10, 11 and 12, are selected by a special committee made up of Gargiulo, Murray, a Novato High assistant principal, and the students' counselor.

"Continuation," explained the principal, "means the student can continue after he has already dropped out."

The school, which has a conference room with soft drink machine and coffee — for both staff and pupils — is expected to add more students as the year progresses, Gargiulo said. He would not say what the maximum number could be.

Withdrawal Of Shelley Brings One Candidate

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) —San Francisco Mayor John F. Shelley's decision not to seek re-election brought a new look to the mayoralty race with one new candidate and another possibility in the wings.

A secretary read the 62-year-old hospitalized mayor's statement yesterday that he was withdrawing from the non-partisan Nov. 7 election.

'SIMPLE CHOICE'

"It's a simple choice for me —of life or of death," said Shelley, who had suffered a heart attack in 1958 when he was a congressman. He added that doctors, making a checkup, warned him he must not embark on a rigorous election campaign.

"They are not afraid I might lose. They are afraid that I might win," he said.

Attorney Joseph L. Alioto tossed his hat in the ring a short time later. His only announced opponent is Supervisor Harold S. Dobbs.

Supervisor Jack Morrison, surveying possible support, said he will decide early next week whether he will become a candidate.

Shelley, Alioto and Morrison are Democrats, Dobbs a Republican.

Dobbs, who lost to Shelly four years ago, expressed his sympathy for Shelley, noted that the mayor would have been a formidable opponent and that Alioto likewise would be a formidable foe.

Congressman Phillip Burton, San Francisco Democrat, and his brother, Assemblyman John C. Burton, of San Francisco, both expressed surprise at Shelley's withdrawal, and commented similarly that it looked like there might have been "a deal of some kind." However, neither elaborated.

Alioto, a wealthy man, also is president of the California Rice Growers Association. He had previously served on the San Francisco Board of Education and as chairman of the San of the San Francisco Redevelopment Agency.

Alioto told newsmen he is completely independent and had made no deals with anyone.

Shelley is eligible for a $9,750-a-year congressional pension possibly a state legislative pension.

A native of San Francisco, he began his political career by winning a state Senate seat in 1938. He was elected to Congress in 1949, re-elected seven times and then in 1963 realized his ambition of becoming mayor of San Francisco.

A Giant Among Atoms Discovered

LIVERMORE, Calif. (AP) — Discovery of the heaviest atom ever definitely observed was announced today by Dr. Glenn T. Seaborg, chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission.

The atom is an isotope of element 101 or mendelevium with 258 mass units. Isotopes of an element differ only in the number of neutrons in their nuclei.

The heaviest atom previously observed with certainty was an isotope of element 100, fermium, with 257 mass units.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Nervous Indigestion Reflects Pressures On Person's Emotions

VAN DELLEN

Nervous indigestion is a common complaint because the gastrointestinal tract is the sounding board for disturbances arising from anxiety and emotional upsets. The digestive organs can be normal but are misbehaving.

But just because the nerves are to blame for dyspepsia does not mean that distress is imaginary.

The digestive tract is controlled by the autonomic nervous system. Its impulses are responsible for churning of the stomach and contractions that propel food along the alimentary tract.

These nerves also are capable of turning the secretions off and on, and in this respect, can alter the quantity of the enzymes produced for the digestive processes.

WHEN AN individual has a nervous predisposition the stimuli created by emotional upsets are stronger than usual. The muscles of the stomach and the intestine go into painful spasm and the gastric ferments pour out in the wrong proportions leading to gas, dyspepsia, and other digestive symptoms.

Vomiting ensues when nerve stimulation causes the gastric pouch to go into reverse.

THE CONDITION is difficult to treat. It is impossible to renovate the nervous system and equally difficult to change the person's way of living. Some sufferers improve with reassurance but the majority must alter their habits. Heartburn, unpleasant breath, bloating, gas, and a bad taste in the mouth will be decreased if the person refrains from belching.

Moderation in the use of alcohol, tobacco, laxatives, and certain medicines are helpful also. Strive for a better balance between work, rest, and recreation.

Drugs that relax the individual and his intestinal tract are indispensable until improper eating and emotional habits are corrected.

SEDATIVES QUIET the body as a whole; the antispasmodic and anticholinergic drugs have a more specific effect upon the overactive nervous system.

(Dr. Van Dellen will answer questions on medical topics id stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request to the I-J.)

ORANGE PULP

Mrs. C. M. writes: I eat an orange a day, pulp and all. But my husband tells me the pulp should be discarded. Will eating it affect my health?

REPLY

No. Include the skin too, if you like it. In fact, chocolate-covered orange peel is a tasty candy.

OVERGROWN SCARS

B. P. writes: What makes keloids grow on a tattoo?

REPLY

Persons who are predisposed to keloids develop ugly scars whenever the skin is traumatized. This includes tattooing. Send a stamped, self-addresses envelope for leaflet on keloids.

CHEST RALES

J. T. S. writes: What is meant by rales in the chest?

REPLY

Rales are sounds the physician hears when there is congestion in the lungs. The noise stems from moisture in the bronchi and air sacs that move with each breath.

CORRECT TENSION

T. F. A. writes: I know that hypertension means high blood pressure and hypotension is low blood pressure. What is the correct tension called?

REPLY

Normotension.

BANANAS AND NUTS

Mrs. N. writes: Must a person with arthritis omit bananas and nuts from her diet?

REPLY

No. She can enjoy her banana splits unless she is overweight.

Today is Saturday, Sept. 9, the 252nd day of 1967 with 113 to follow.

The moon is between its new phase and first quarter. The morning stars are Jupiter, Saturn and Venus. The evening stars are Mars and Saturn.

Born on this day in 1823 was American scientist Joseph Leidy.

On this day in history:

In 1776, the term United States was made official by the second Continental Congress.

In 1919, almost the entire Boston police force went out on strike, demanding recognition of a new union. It ended on Sept. 12, but Gov. Coolidge ruled that strikers would not be admitted back on the force.

In 1943, American and British forces from North Africa invaded Italy at Salerno.

In 1965, French President De Gaulle hinted he would withdraw his nation from NATO . . . and he did the following year.

Losing To A Doubleton Jack Unnecessary In This Contract

DRAWS TRUMP

South refused the first trick, won the next diamond, drew trumps with the ace and ten and led a heart from dummy, losing the king to West's ace.

West returned the seven of hearts, and South correctly calculated that the odds favored West to hold the jack. Declarer therefore took a finesse with dummy's ten of hearts, and there went his contract.

QUIET RIGHT

"If you went up with the queen, the jack of hearts would drop," North helpfully pointed out. South snorted disdainfully, but his partner was quite right.

After winning the second diamond South should draw trumps and lead the low heart from his own hand. West must play low, and dummy's queen wins. Now South returns a heart from dummy, losing the king to West's ace. Since the jack of hearts happens to drop on this trick South has no further problem.

WEST DOOMED

If East held only two small hearts, the jack would not drop but West would be unable to make a safe return. If West then leads a diamond, dummy ruffs and South discards a club. If West leads clubs, South easily wins two club tricks. If West leads another heart from J-x-x (which he would hold if East had started with only x-x of hearts), dummy's ten of hearts must win a trick.

South might still go wrong if East started with three hearts to the jack, but he would not lose a trick to the doubleton jack.

Computer Going To Sea

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — A seagoing computer has "signed on" for duty aboard a Scripps Institution of Oceanography research vessel.

Installation of the system on board the Thomas Washington will enable Scripps scientists to gather and act on information obtained from the sea without having to return to port for processing by land-based computers.

"Ultimately, the computer will give the scientist a tool with which to achieve greater scientific knowledge more rapidly at sea," says Dr. William A. Nierengerg, director of the University of California's Oceanography Institution here.

He received his bachelor of divinity degree from Pacific School of Religion, Berkeley, in 1958 and his bachelor of arts degree from Carleton College in Minnesota in 1954.

He has continued his training for the ministry through the Institute for Advanced Pastoral Training in Bloomfield Hills, Mich., and recently returned from a semester of study at Harvard Divinity School.

He and his wife, Mary Anne, and two daughters, Megan, 8, and Bronwyn, 6, have moved into the parsonage at 170 Rock Hill Drive, Tiburon.

Final Vows To Be Taken By Marist Tuesday Night

Ronald Exley of San Francisco will take his final vows in ceremonies Tuesday night as a member of the Society of Marist.

Also during the 7:30 p.m. services at Chapel of St. Peter Chanel Seminary, 1675 Grand Avenue, San Rafael, a profession of the Third Order of Mary, will be held.

Third Order of Mary, is a Marist Fathers' affiliate group for Catholic laity.

Rev. Samuel DiGirolamo of the seminary is the group's spiritual director.

Exley, who will be ordained as a priest in three years, graduated last year from the University of San Diego. From 1957-63, he was a student at the seminary. He is presently during graduate study at Catholic University of America in Washington, D. C.

Rally Day Is Tomorrow For Students

Faith Lutheran Church, 355 Los Ranchitos Road, Terra Linda, will hold rally day tomorrow at 9:15 a.m. for church school members.

Tomorrow also will begin the church's fall schedule with church school at 9:15 a.m.; early worship service, 9:30 a.m., and second church school and another morning service at 11 a.m. Nursery care is provided for both services.

During the summer, the church continued its reconstruction program following a $28,000 fire on April 15.

Also being built is an addition to the church office.

Weekday Rites Given Blessing

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The liturgical commission of the U.S. Catholic hierarchy has given its blessing to weekday masses in private homes, provided they are authorized by the local bishop and do not involve "innovations" in ritual.

"Diocesan programs for such masses can be a help not a hindrance in developing better parish spirit and better understanding of the Sunday mass in church," said a statement from the commission headed by Archbishop Paul J. Hallinan of Atlanta.

Visiting Bishop Slated To Appear On TV Program

Rev. Georges Hakin, Melkite archbishop of Galilee who visited Novato this week at which time he said an outdoor mass at the new Catholic visiting nurse program headquarters at 133 Maestro Road, may be seen on television Channel 3 (Sacramento) at 10:30 a.m., tomorrow.

The church head from Israel will be on "Frontiers of Faith," in an interview made by NBC in Toronto.

He was also to have appeared on Channel 3 at noon, Thursday, discussing Israel.

Rev. Hakim officiated at the mass of dedication in Novato before about 30 persons, Paul Brindel, owner of the nursing quarters, reported.

Marinite Now With Literacy Agency

Court Shepard, member of the Tiburon Baptist Church, has accepted a post with Laubach Literacy, Inc., with headquarters at Syracuse, N. Y.

He and his wife and two children left recently for Syracuse. He will help various mission boards throughout the world in developing literacy missions.

CHURCH FINDS A WAY TO ATTRACT MEMBERS

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — When Dallas Methodists decided they couldn't get enough apartment dwellers into church, they decided to get into apartments — about $1 million worth.

Methodist officials said this week they plan to build a nonprofit apartment complex so that the church will be "working from the inside out rather than from the outside in."

In the 75-unit complex, Rev. John Rasmussen Jr. of suburban Mesquite will be pastor. He said residents other than Methodists will be welcomed to the apartment complex which will include a parsonage, a church, a swimming pool and possibly a beauty shop.

The project, Rev. Rasmussen explained is a pilot effort to show the way to deal with the problem of getting apartment residents interested in religion.

Rentals will be about the same as for other apartments, Methodist officials said, and they emphasized the project could not be styled "low-rent."

Methodist Bishop W. Kenneth Pope and Rev. Earl Harvey, both of Dallas, were among Methodist leaders suggesting the new project.

Probably to be completed within a year, the project will have the support of various Methodist agencies and boards, the pastor said.

'COME ALIVE'

No Box Warehouse But A 'Now' Church

NEW YORK (AP) — Cardboard boxes piled high. Hundreds of them, row on row, circling, zig-zagging, dead ends, exits. Printed and plastered with sense and nonsense. Is it a warehouse? A trap?

No, it's a kind of "house of prayer," says the pretty nun in charge, Sister Lenore Navarro. It's also a maze, a web of aisles, blazoned with the sights, anxieties and hopes of the times.

HINT OF CHANGES

The strange mediatation room was set up there at a recent international Congress on Religion, Architecture and the Visual Arts, giving a hint of the changing attitudes on what makes an appropriate devotional atmosphere today—a "now" church.

It's an odd place, zany, provocative but interpenetrated with faith.

You get a life-like sense of discordance as you wander through those cardboard corridors, also of a throbbing, innate vitality.

"COME ALIVE," blares a splash of red letters arching across a barricade of boxes. "GET WITH THE ACTION." "GUTS" and then the scenery dissolves into a crowded panorama of faces, troubles, questions, enticements, hopes.

"I should like to speak of God not on the border of life but at its center," reads a quotation from the martyred German theologian Dietrich Bonhoeffer. All around are the images of human tumult, effort and tinseled distractions.

'NOW' CHURCH

A photograph of a laughing girl appears variously sideways, upsidedown and spinning in circles.

Walking through the "Now" church is like walking through a compressed Times Square with its mixed cries, motion, tawdriness and neon dazzle. Yet it also is interspersed with glimmerings of high purpose and potentiality.

"In so far as the pictures and words are about our world, it's an environment for prayer and reflection," said Sister Lenore, of Catholicism's Immaculate Heart College, Los Angeles. "It's a good place for worship to take place."

The cardboard chapel, arranged in two suites of the New York Hilton Hotel, was fashioned by Sister Mary Corita Kent, professor of art at Immaculate Heart College, with the help of her students.

Ecumenical Event To Open Fall Schedule

Women of the Redwoods, an organization of the Redwoods Presbyterian Church in Larkspur, will hold its third ecumenical luncheon at 11:45 a.m. Tuesday in the fellowship hall, 110 Magnolia Avenue.

Guest speakers for the affair, open to women's groups of neighboring churches, will be Revs. Phillips O'Donnell and Charles G. Robertson Jr., who serve as chaplains at College of Marin Newman Center, 850 College Avenue, Kentfield.

The pair will outline past accomplishments of the newly equipped center and tell of plans for the new school year.

Father O'Donnell, who serves as Catholic chaplain for college students, was ordained to the priesthood in 1955.

Rev. Robertson is Protestant chaplain at the college. He graduated last spring from the San Francisco Theological Seminary in San Anselmo.

Parish Sets Opening Of Fall School

Holy Innocents' Episcopal Parish in Corte Madera will open its fall Sunday School term tomorrow at 9:30 a.m. with a staff of 45 teachers.

Heading the list as directors are Wesley Matson and Mrs. Don Boucher. The visual aid department is under the direction of Mrs. Manuel Barbarisi.

There will be child care for those under three years, and classes for all ages, including adults. The latter will be under the tutelage of Rev. Wade Egbert.

The junior choir, directed by Mrs. Edward Tennler, will lead the worship service. It is open to grade school youngsters. Rehearsals are on Thursday, at 4 p.m.

Hunches Win For Giants

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A couple of hunches by manager Herman Franks paid off and his San Francisco Giants are still in second place in the National League today, with a winning streak of seven games.

Franks, needing two blows in the last inning, picked the right pinch hitter and then let his pitcher bat for himself.

Jim Davenport, the pinch hitter, and Ray Sadecki, the pitcher, both connected last night and that gave the Giants a 4-3 victory over the Chicago Cubs at Candlestick Park.

Davenport drove in the tieing run with a triple and Sadecki singled him home with the winner.

"I'm not going to flatter myself and say I'm a good enough hitter to be able to hit the ball where I want," Davenport said. "I just try and get the bat on the ball."

Davenport hit for Hal Lanier in the ninth inning said: "I couldn't have carried the ball to a better place than where I hit it." His hit was down the first field line and bounced off the fence as pinchrunner Ty Cline scored the tieing run. Cline was on base because of an error.

Franks then let Sadecki bat for himself and the pitcher came through with a single to right field, ending the game.

Sadecki was wild in the early innings, giving up six hits and three runs in the first three frames.

After that he settled down and allowed only two singles in the last six innings. He struck out nine and did not walk a batter.

The win was the eighth of the season for Sadecki and the first time in three months he has won two games in a row.

"Before this I pitched a good game and then a bad one. Maybe I'm out of the rut," Sadecki said.

The Giants are in second place, 10½ games behind the St. Louis Cardinals and a game ahead of Chicago.

Mike McCormick went after his 20th win of the season for San Francisco when he faced the Cubs this afternoon. Lefty Rich Nye (11-9) pitched for Chicago.

Toughie For 49ers

By JACK STEVENSON

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Los Angeles Rams aim for their first undefeated pre-season record in history tonight when they battle the San Francisco 49ers at the Coliseum.

Not since they joined the National Football League in 1946 have the Rams won all of their pre-season games but this time, says split end Jack Snow, "We think we have the momentum to do it."

The Rams are favored by 9½ points over San Francisco.

Coach George Allen will use both fullback Dick Bass and halfback Tommy Mason for the first time this year with the former in the starting alignment and the latter available for spot service.

Allen held both out of the first five games for two reasons. First, he felt he knew the capabilities of each and wanted to look at others and secondly, he wanted to take no chances on injuries.

Television Tilt

Tonight's 49er-Ram game will be televised at 8 o'clock by KTVU, Channel 2.

With Bass back, Lester Josephson moves from fullback to the starting halfback slot. Josephson led the Rams' rushers in the first five outings with a 5.1 average and 342 yards.

San Francisco expects to have workhorse fullback Ken Willard ready for action after he missed three games with a foot injury suffered in the opener.

Bernie Casey, who has caught passes from 49er quarterback John Brodie in the past, goes this time as a target for the Rams' Roman Gabriel. San Francisco traded Casey to Atlanta in the deal for draft rights to Heisman Trophy winner Steve Spurrier and the Rams dealt to get Bernie from the Falcons.

To date, the former Bowling

Rules Continue To Fog The Football Picture

Football as an institution slays me. It's not a body of men, it's a body of law. It makes the Napoleonic Code look like a footnote. You could run England for a century on less statutes than it takes to run the Big Ten. The real "Four Horsemen" on the field are not Stuhldreher, Miller, Layden and Crowley, they are Field Judge, Back Judge, Head Linesman and Referee.

They lose no chance to laminate the game with further useless laws every chance they get. If all the new rules were stacked each year, it would take a step ladder to reach the top one. The substitutions rules, alone, are so hilarious they have cost the offensive team more yards in the past few seasons than intentional fouls — or even blocked punts.

This year, football came up with another poser. The "fair catch" rule was taking all the fun and suspense out of the kicking game. There were no runbacks to speak of. All the Galloping Ghosts became Statues of Liberty.

A Complex New Punting Rule

So, the resident graybeards of the game huddled. Did they come up with a simple solution — outlaw the fair catch? Hell, no! That would SUBTRACT from the groaning body of law. What they did — typically — is put on a complex new set of rules which will: A) require a new official, or overburden one already existent; B) require a new coach to teach the defensive punt team; or C) encourage a coach to manacle his line's ankles on punt plays. The new law says that linemen may not go downfield under punts until the kick is under way. This, of course, will rule out any hard-of-hearing linemen because the only way you know a punt is aloft, when your backside is turned to the punter, is by sound.

What if this gives an unwieldy advantage to the punt-returner, and he suddenly starts making 75 yards to a touchdown on every kick? Will the NCAA THEN outlaw the fair catch? Ha! They will then rule that the punt receiver CANNOT START BACK UNDER THE PUNT until after the ball is kicked! They not only like to keep coaches busy, but also dentists.

NCAA Group Could Ruin Baseball

Baseball is a game whose rate of change is glacial. But, my notion is they ought to put the NCAA football rules makers in charge for a few years. The pitchers are ahead of the hitters? Simple, my boy! Make everybody who is batting over .313 bat the opposite way from his natural way. Make every pitcher whose ERA is lower than 2.13 have to pitch from an optional mound 10 feet farther back than the regulation one.

Too many arguments over balls-and-strikes on the field? Nothing to it, old boy! Have the umpire call the game in Latin. By the time it's translated, even Pete Ward will have cooled off.

The serve is ruining tennis? Too big an advantage for the server? Football czars can solve that one on their martini napkins. Construct a 70-foot net to serve over. Or make the big servers use cheesecloth instead of gut in their racquets. Or, better yet, truck in an official with an electronic timer. Any serve over 100-miles-an-hour shall constitute a fult.

How To Handicap Cassius Clay

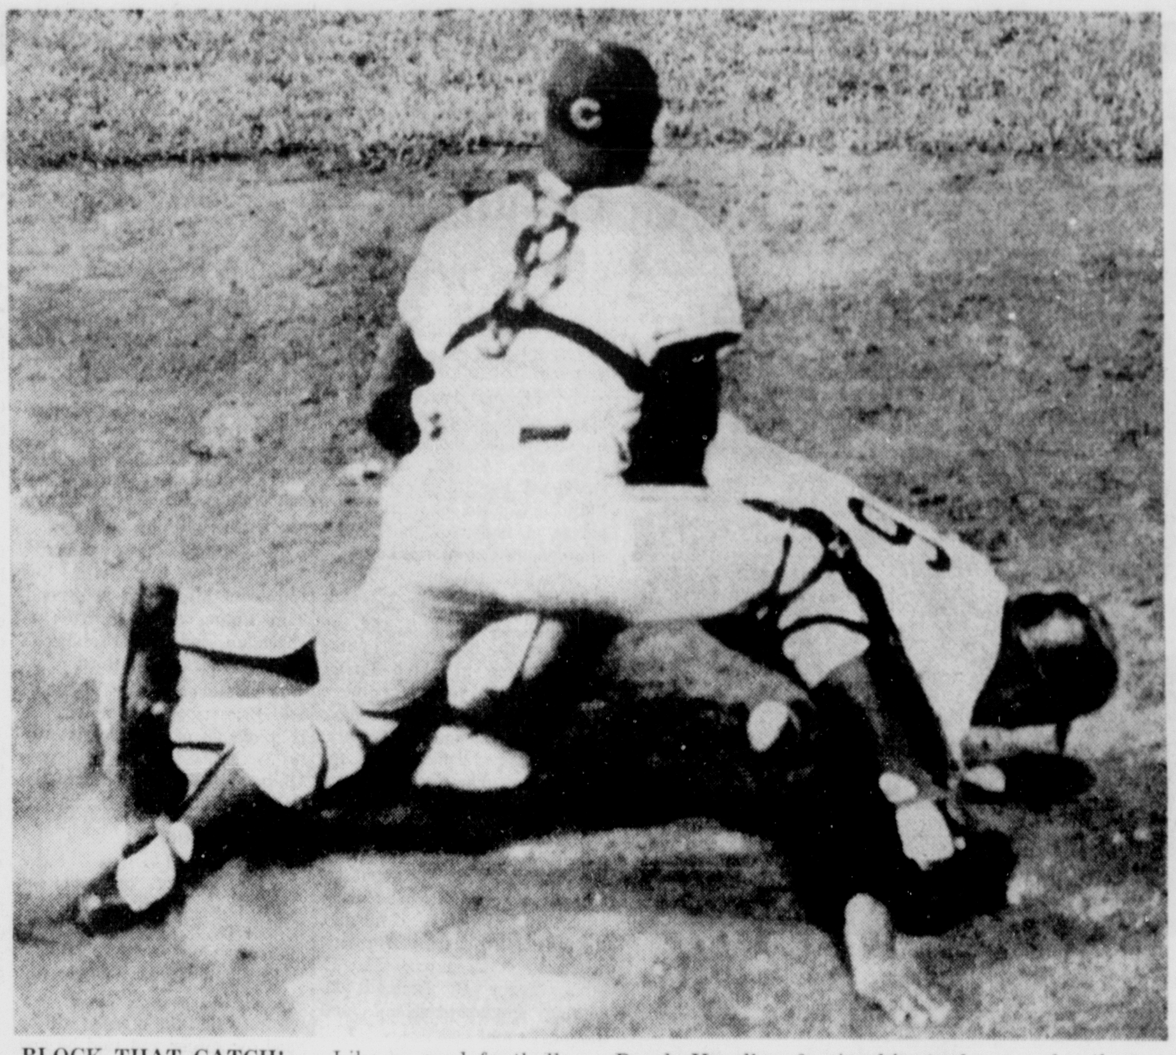
The point is, the more complex the solution, the better. Off their football experience, these guys could turn a canoe race into the Battle of Midway. They could equalize the heavyweight championship by legislating that Cassius Clay could land a lefthand only to that portion of his opponent's anatomy premarked with India ink at the weigh-in, and no more frequently than 25-second intervals. Right hands could be landed only at those times in a round divisible by four. And members of the rules committee would be hired only after a five-year career designing one-way streets for cities over 500,000 in population.

Mercury-Cougar Tops Contenders

MODESTO (UPI)—The Mercury Cougar team of Ed Leslie of Monterey, Pete Revson of New York, and Australia's Allan Moffatt was favored today to win tomorrow's three-hour endurance race sanctioned by the Sports Car Club of America.

The race, to be run at the U.S. Naval Station in Crows Landing, is the ninth in a series of 12 nationwide races for Manufacturers Championship points.

Mustang leads in the series with 50 points and Cougar is second with 45. Chevrolet is third with 38. A manufacturer can only score points for his best car's finish, but placing another Mustang, for instance, second and third would take out the points awarded for those spots.



BLOCK THAT CATCH! — Like a good football lineman, San Francisco Giant Jim Ray Hart throws a jarring block into Chicago Cub catcher Randy Hundley, forcing him to drop a relay throw to the plate, and allowing Hart to score in the fourth inning of last night's game at Candlestick Park. Bad Boys Steal Show In U.S. Tennis Shockers

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. (AP) — They call themselves the "steely boys" because both use the new, revolutionary steel rackets.

When the National Tennis Championships began, you could have got 100-1 odds that the two of them wouldn't get to the semi-finals. They've both been in the Davis Cub doghouse and neither is pointing to a job for winning back the big trophy.

But they're America's new and surprising hopes today when this aged grass court classic decided who will play for the men's singles crown in Sunday's final. The United States hasn't had a champion since Tony Trabert in 1955.

They are Clark Graebner, 23, bespectacled, scholarly-looking son of a Cleveland dentist, renowned largely as a doubles specialist, and Gene Scott, 29, a Yale graduate, a practicing lawyer on Wall Street who is only a part-time tournament player.

Both pulled staggering upsets in the quarter-finals yesterday to give American tennis a shot in the arm that it hasn't had in nearly a decade.

Graebner, seeded seventh, used a crackling service and a pair of strong, halfback legs in winning a three-hour cliffhanger from Roy Emerson of Australia, twice winner of this tournament, 8-6, 3-6, 19-17, 6-1. The third set alone lasted 1½ hours.

Scott, who has played only four tournaments this summer and is ranked 16th nationally, turned back Owen Davidson, the big Australian southpaw 6-3, 8-6, 9-7.

NEWCOMBE NEXT

The New York lawyer will need every legal device—plus some—in his semifinal match today. He plays John Newcombe, the Australian who won Wimbledon and is the seeded No. 1 favorite. The 23-year-old Newcombe toppled Bob Hewitt of South Africa 4-6, 6-0, 7-5, 6-3.

Graebner's opponent is the sensational Jan Leschly, 26-year-old Danish druggist who has become the dreaded tournament dark-horse. Leschly, with previous wins over fifth-seeded Cliff Drysdale, Frank Froehling and Thomas Koch, won a five-set back-breaker from Brazil's Ron Barnes 7-9, 6-4, 2-6, 6-3, 8-6.

Graebner said after his match that he owed his victory to his service.

"With this steel racket, I served much better than I have in a long time," he said. "Also, when I came out for the fifth set, I wasn't as stiff as Emerson."

Emerson revealed that he suffered a pulled muscle in his right thigh and skinned his shin when he somersaulted over the net in the second game of the long third set.

"I didn't move well after that," he said.

Graebner was booted off the Davis Cup team a year ago for unsportsmanlike conduct but later was reinstated. "I'm going to ask to be removed from the squad this winter, so I can travel on my own," he said.

Scott became disenchanted with the Cup team and its captain a couple of years ago.

"I wouldn't play on the team unless my Dad were captain," he said. He said he hadn't spoken to George MacCall, the current captain, for months.

PRO GRID

AFL Opens; NFL Lions Top Cards

By BEN OLAN
Associated Press Sports Writer

There'll be good reasons for the Houston Oilers and Boston Patriots to worry tonight when the American Football League begins its first full-scale weekend of regular season competition while the National League continues its pre-season schedule.

The Oilers, losers of 12 in a row—the last eight games of the 1966 campaign plus all four 1967 exhibitions—open their season at home against the powerful Kansas City Chiefs. Boston is at San Diego in the only other game.

In tomorrow's afternoon games, the New York Jets are at Buffalo and Denver is at Oakland. Denver and Boston opened the AFL season a week ago in the only game played so far with the Broncos winning 26-21.

The only pro football action last night was an NFL exhibition in which the Detroit Lions downed the St. Louis Cards 21-7. A 24-yard pass by Milt Plum and a 45-yard runback of an intercepted pass by Tom Vaugh resulted in third quarter touchdowns that carried the Lions to victory.

Seven other NFL pre-season games are on tap this weekend tonight. Atlanta is at New Orleans, Baltimore at Dallas, Chicago plays Philadelphia at Memphis, Tenn., New York is at Green Bay, San Francisc at Los Angeles and Pittsburgh meets Washington at Norfolk, Va.

Tomorrow afternoon, it'll be Cleveland at Minnesota. The National League campaign opens Sept. 17.

Would You Believe It?— Raiders Favored To Win

OAKLAND (UPI)—Despite a four-game winning streak, including a 26-21 decision last Sunday over the Boston Patriots in their first regular season game in the American Football League, the Denver Broncos will be 6½ point underdogs tomorrow when they take on the Oakland Raiders at the Coliseum before an expected crowd of 35,000.

The Broncos are the upstarts of the year thus far and have shown vast improvement over the team which finished last in the AFL's Western Division in 1966. Among their victories this year are decisions over the Detroit Lions and Minnesota Vikings of the National Football League and a 21-17 win over the Raiders.

Still, though, the oddsmakers figure the Raiders, who bowed to the San Francisco 49ers of the NFL last week, are the second toughest team in the AFL's Western Division behind the league champion Kansas City Chiefs and the Broncos will have to come up with some kind of a miracle to beat them.

The Raiders played both good and bad in losing to the 49ers, 13-10. Daryle Lamonica, the quarterback they are counting on to lead them to their first AFL title, had a poor day while veteran George Blanda, picked up for insurance reasons, engineered Oakland's only TD—a 41-yard toss to Fred Biletnikoff.

Coach John Rauch is hopeful this is the Raiders' year but he isn't taking the Broncos lightly.

"They have demonstrated they can play very good football," Rauch said of the Broncos, "and this is due in part to Lou Saban's leadership."

Saban was named Denver's coach and general manager during the off-season and has blended a cast of veterans and newcomers into a hard-hitting team.

Lamonica, despite his "off day" against the 49ers, will start at quarterback against the Broncos with Blanda in reserve.

Lack of consistency thus far in the exhibition games has hurt the Raiders and that is a problem which may plague them for some time. However, Rauch is optimistic, befitting a coach coming up to the season's first game.

The Denver attack is built mainly around the passing of Steve Tensi, picked up from San Diego, and the catching of Al Denson. The two ruined Boston a week ago on 55 and 58 yard scoring plays.

MARIN GOLF

Believe-It-Or-Not Shot By Youth, 13

Things were really jumping at the Meadow Club in Fairfax during the past two weeks with 13-year-old John Fahrner of San Rafael, Rick Timmer, also of San Rafael, and the father-son team of Bob and Jim Wilhelm stealing the show.

Young Fahrner will long remember his very first round of golf. It occurred last Friday, Aug. 29. Playing with his brother, Dick, and Eric Gilberg, Fahrner scored a hole-in-one on the 152-yard eighth hole, using a number two wood.

Fahrner had been practicing all summer, but that was his first round of golf, according to Leroy Silva, pro at the Fairfax club. One of Fahrner's playing partners hollered: "Hey, John, you're on the green." The other said, "The heck he is; the ball's in the hole!" A believe-it-or-not story that belongs in Robert Ripley's Hall of Fame.

On that same day, Timmer emerged as the club's 1967 junior champion with a 54-hole low gross card of 234 strokes. He edged out Nick Grey by one stroke. Other leaders were George Carewe and Jim Wilhelm tied at 238, Tim McMurray 239 and Ed Carewe 257. More than 20 juniors participated.

Fifteen-year-old Tom Schaal won the low net division with a card of 199. Mark Gilberg was second at 202.

The Father-Son tournament last Sunday was a thriller with the Wilhelms beating Stu and Jeff Harrison in a sudden death playoff. After tying at the end of regulation with best call cards of 63, the Wilhelms won the title on the first extra hole.

Dr. Marv and Mark Gilberg placed third at 64 and Herb and Art Crocker were fourth at 65.

U.S. Bids For Six Rowing Team Finalists

Four U.S. crews, including the Harvard eight, won their repechage heats and gained the finals, scheduled Sunday. In addition, the fours with coxswain from the Vesper Boat Club in Philadelphia gained the semis with a victory in 7:01.10.

Marin League Gridders Warned; Watch Out For Tam

(Fourth in a series on Marin County Athletic League football prospects.)

By GARY TISCHLER

If a few of Coach Willie Hector's Tamalpais High School gridders break a leg, catch a cold or twist an ankle, the Indians could be in for a heap sad season.

If they don't — watch out!

Just consider some of this ready-made arsenal.

All-league fullback Mike Fowler is back, 15 pounds bigger, bothered a bit by an amputated tow, running harder and faster.

Junior quarterback Don Mackin is back, a year older, hand healed, as accurate as he was at the start of last year's season when he completed eight touchdown passes in two and one-hald games before being sidelined the rest of the season by an injury.

Middle guard John Cathey, an all-leaguer last year, is back, all tough 160 pounds of him, giving the Indians the nucleus of a top pass rush on defense.

You can add five other returning lettermen to that list, all of them starters, including 160-pound guard Rich Geissinger, stellar defensive halfback Leroy Barrow, 220-pound tackle Rich Brabo, end Jim Hardy and linebacker Ron Blasingame.

Plus tackle Bruce Hildreth. Weight: 260.

Plus a patch of talented newcomers up from the junior varsity, a load that includes sprinter Luther Brown, fullback David Hector, 190-pound "little" brother of the coach, 205-pound center Charlie McBride and 225-pound tackle Verdeen Herbel.

The fly in the ointment is that if Hector ever needs replacements and looks toward the bench, he may find it close to empty.

There are only 27 varsity candidates out for football. Which doesn't leave a very deep pool to draw from in case of emergencies.

"I really don't understand it," said Hector, who has had two outstanding seasons since taking over head coaching chores at Tamalpais. "We just haven't had too many people come out."

Hector, an amiable fellow, is high on what he's got, but won't say just how far up the Indians will finish, possibly remembering that they roared off like a house on fire last year, only to lose it all in a 27-7 loss to Terra Linda and a 20-20 tie with San Rafael at the end of the season.

"If we can get a start like that again," Hector said, "we'll keep right on going. We have a good chance, if nobody gets hurt."

Hector has set up a gruelling non-conference schedule that will either leave his Indians in a state of collapse or tough as nails. He thinks it will be the latter, after facing foes like Monterey, Riordan, Salesian and Vallejo.

"I don't think we'll get chewed up by anybody," Hector said. "We might not win them all but nobody will run over us. We've got plenty of size and we're strong."

Mackin could be the outstanding quarterback in the MCAL in what looks to be another bumper crop of signal callers. He won't have anybody like all-league receiver Mike Biber to throw to but there are plenty of willing and able hands.

Barrows, a top defensive halfback and punt return specialist last year, will be the chief pass target. He has speed and good moves and may give a lot of trouble. If he's covered, Mackin can hit either Fowler or Brown, not a bad choice of targets.

Hector has plenty of size on the line, something a lot of teams are missing this year.

"We average over 200 on both lines," Hector said. "That makes us pretty big."

Along with a possible best quarterback, the Indians could have the best runner in Fowler. The hard-ramming senior put on 15 more pounds, none of it fat, lost a toe in a run-in with a lawn-mower and still runs like a super-sonic locomotive.

"He'll run over a few people," Hector said.

He probably will. And so will the Indians, probably. If they survive that murderer's row schedule in one piece.

Novato's Champs Honored

Thirty Novato Babe Ruth League ball players were honored yesterday starting with lunch and climaxing with a San Francisco Giants night ball game.

The 14 and 15-year-old All-Stars, who worked their way to play in the World Series at Anchorage, Alaska, and their sidekicks, the 13-year-old California state champs, were guests of honor of the Novato Chamber of Commerce luncheon at Nero's Restaurant.

Certificates and trophies were presented to the boys and, afterwards, the boys were invited to bowl free at Nave Lanes. Last night the youngsters were taken to the Giants-Chicago Cubs game at Candlestick Park. Tickets were donated by the Giants and transportation provided by Hamilton Air Force Base.

Congratulating the boys at the luncheon, attended by about 120 persons, were Marin County Supervisor William Gnoss, Novato Mayor J. Wayne Womack, Councilman M. E. Silva, Tracy D. Rundell, incoming league president, and managers and coaches.

BASEBALL TOWN

Telling the boys that Novato has always been "a great baseball town" and that there are now 25 teams, Councilman Silva praised the youths for their "good sportsmanship."

"It's not winning tournaments," said Rundell, "but our main concern is giving the boys something to do during the summer and teaching them good sportsman ship."

Also honored were managers and coaches, William Dillon, Paul Chaffee, George Jensen, Jack Holsclaw and Bob Sisemore.

Pitchers Head Rookies; Soccer Merger Scheduled

NEW YORK (AP)—Right-handed pitchers Dick Hughes of St. Louis and Tom Seaver of the New York Mets were named to the Topps all-star rookie baseball team yesterday, marking the first time in the team's nine-year existence that two players have tied for a position.

The infield has Cincinnati's Lee May at first base, Rod Carew of Minnesota at second, Tim Cullen of Washington at shortstop and San Francisco's Bobby Etheridge at third.

The catcher is Dick Dietz of San Francisco and the outfield is made up of Rick Monday of Kansas City, Boston's Reggie Smith and Walt Williams of the Chicago White Sox.

Volunteers Act While Boat Safety Debated

WITH MORE THAN EIGHT million recreational craft afloat on the nation's waterways, we can expect to hear more about the need for increased attention to boating safety.

In Washington, a "Special Studies" subcommittee of the House Committee on Governmental Operations is looking into the question of whether the Coast Guard is doing enough to prevent small-boat accidents.

Already this has given rise to a Drew Pearson column accusing boat manufacturers of "most serious neglect."

BECAUSE THE COAST GUARD administers federal boating laws, including those aimed at promoting safety, the Coast Guard inevitably comes in for criticism.

Is this criticism justified?

According to Alan S. Boyd, secretary of the new U.S. Department of Transportation (of which the Coast Guard is not a part), overloading small boats is "the major cause of boating deaths."

Coast Guard records indicate that more than half of all boating accidents result from collisions.

Boats are safe enough, declares the well-known Bay Area boating columnist, Jack Schmale, but he questions the qualifications of the operators.

At present, no test, examination, license or permit of any kind is required for any person to operate a private pleasure boat.

Congressman Charles E. Chamberlain of Michigan has introduced H.R. 11800 which would require operator licenses. No person under 12 could obtain a license. Those under 15 would not be permitted to operate a powerboat unless a licensed operator over 20 were aboard.

This bill has been referred to the House Committee on Merchant Marine and Fisheries.

It is opposed by the National Association of Engine and Boat Manufacturers on the grounds that "there is no evidence that it would improve boating safety."

Thus far the Coast Guard has not supported or advocated any such licensing requirement.

WHAT DOES THE COAST Guard do?

Last year it responded to 43,366 calls for assistance, saved 3,420 lives (boating accident deaths last year totalled 1,318, down slightly from the previous year), and gave assistance to aircraft and watercraft worth more than 3.6 million dollars.

If you listen to the emergency call frequency on your ship-to-shore radio while cruising the waters of San Francisco Bay and tributaries on the summer weekend, you will get an earful.

You will hear obvious drunks calling the Coast Guard because they are lost or have run aground.

You will hear people with minor problems that they should be looking after themselves (like recovering a dinghy which has broken away from its "mother" vessel).

You will hear calls for assistance from boats with dead batteries or dry gas tanks — both of which result from the carelessness or foolishness of the operator.

You cannot escape the impression that the taxpayers are supporting the Coast Guard to provide a free "roadside towing service" to careless and unthinking boatmen.

If you listen carefully, you will observe that Coast Guard radio communications do a masterful job of obtaining information from the caller when assistance is sought.

Obviously, when help is needed, the Coast Guard cannot differentiate between those who foolishly got themselves into trouble and those who were thrust into trouble by factors beyond their control.

When you actually see Coast Guardsmen in action at the scene of distress, you can only admire their selfless service.

And you sympathize all the more that they must patiently and courteously endure undeserved criticism from those asking help they don't really need and shouldn't ask for.

ON THE PREVENTIVE side, there are two organizations of volunteers who do an immense amount of work to promote boat safety. They are the Coast Guard Auxiliary and the U.S. Power Squadrons. There are units of both in Marin.

By coincidence, safe boating classes conducted by both will open simultaneously next Wednesday night, starting at 7:30.

The Sausalito-Tiburon Flotilla of the Coast Guard Auxiliary will begin an eight-week course at Richardson Bay School in Sausalito.

The Marin Power Squadron will begin a 13-week course at Redwood High School in Larkspur.

The purpose of both efforts is to teach boaters to handle their craft responsibly and safely with due regard for others, afloat or ashore.

The classes are free. It is not necessary to own a boat in order to enroll.

If every novice boater began with one of these courses, boating safety problems would be solved.

The volunteers who do the work necessary to make these courses available seem to be doing the work while those in Washington and in newspaper columns do the talking.

The work of the volunteers unquestionably will do more toward promoting boating safety than the talk of the talkers and writers, for which we can all be thankful.

GOOD HEART DISTINGUISHES GOOD TEACHER

To prepare young people to cope with the problems of adult life requires great understanding and compassion on the part of the teacher, according to Dr. Arthur T. Jersild of Columbia University.

"There is a staggering need for doing something in our educational program to help children and youths to understand themselves and to acquire realistic attitudes of self-acceptance," he declared.

Dr. Jersild pointed out that it requires the teacher to show courage, humility and a capacity for entering into emotional relationships with others. He further stated: "To be a scholar all one needs is a good head, but to be a good teacher one also needs a good heart. To tell what is in the books one need only to remember and to think; but to help students to realize the meaning of life one needs also to feel."

The school is second only to the home in developing well-balanced dynamic, competent young people. Pray that teachers measure up to the great responsibility that God has entrusted to each of them.

Governor's Veto Described As Baffling

Editor, Independent-Journal:

The governor vetoed AB895, a bill to form three regional diagnostic and counseling services centers for the mentally retarded.

This veto is very baffling because Governor Reagan has said that he favors increased local community-type facilities rather than large state hospitals. In fact this was one of his justifications in cutting state hospital budgets for the retarded and mentally ill. Early in 1966 two centers were authorized, one in the San Francisco area — it is called the Golden Gate Regional Center. It has proved to be not only a more satisfactory way of treating mentally retarded youngsters who would have been placed in a state hospital, but it is more economical to operate than large state institutions. Families pay for services whenever financially able and services can be individualized to fit the needs of the patient.

In essence the governor's veto in this case will cost us taxpayers more money and youngsters who would have remained in their communities will go to state institutions where care will not be as good. For state hospitals for the retarded are over-crowded and understaffed. This has been true for years and is even more critical since the budget cuts.

Unfortunately for the retarded and their families, mental retardation will not disappear because the present administration has chosen to ignore the problem.

Hilarita Resident Protests Decision

Editor, Independent-Journal:

We who live in the Hilarita Housing in Tiburon have been informed by the Housing Authority that these buildings must be torn down not later than 1970 by state law.

It would seem that the law pinpoints certain places; it does not cover the whole state. As of now they are refurbishing Hunters Point, which falls into the same category as Hilarita.

We have a quiet, solid, congenial community here, comprised of veterans World War I, World War II, Korea, veterans' widows, senior citizens, pensioners and welfare recipients. We have our small flower gardens and other civic pride endeavors. If one of our neighbors is in need of help, aid or assistance of any kind it is our need also. We respond.

Any action you might take in our behalf to maintain, repair and continue to operate Hilarita would be greatly appreciated by all.

We are happy here and don't want to become DPs.

At the first intermission, the outraged female star of the production screamed at the stage manager, "Why don't you throw that objectionable bum out of the theater?" "I can't Miss," mourned the stage manager. "He's the producer."

Servicemen Victims Of Housing Bias

By WHITNEY M. YOUNG, JR.

An Army officer was assigned to Vietnam. He tried to find an apartment for his family before leaving for the war zone. He couldn't. Dozens of realty men turned him down because he is Negro.

An Army sergeant recently returned from a frontline tour of duty in Vietnam, where he integrated dozens of foxholes without complaints from his "neighbors." He too, couldn't find an off-base apartment for his family. Again, it was racial discrimination that forced him into an overpriced apartment in a rundown building in the ghetto.

These are examples of the disgraceful conditions facing Negro GI's. Finally, the Defense Department is doing something about it.

SECRETARY OF DEFENSE McNamara issued orders forbidding military personnel in certain bases to lease or rent in any segregated building or trailer court within a specified distance from their base. He said the orders were issued because "thousands of servicemen are being subjected to humiliating discrimination by the refusal of landlords to rent them apartments because of race or creed."

The first base to which the order applied was Andrews Air Force Base, where over half of the white servicemen live within 3½ miles of the base, but only one of every hundred Negro servicemen lives so close.

This order is long overdue, and it should be extended to cover every base in the country. It appears to be the only way to get many landlords and realty men to stop discriminating on the basis of race. If they are willing to have their lives and their property protected by the sacrifices of Negro servicemen, they should be willing to rent to them.

THIS ORDER must be strictly enforced. A report issued last week indicates that landlords are complying, but we all know that many will try to avoid it whenever possible. This is one order which should get top priority from every base commander.

The order is significant because it will enable thousands of Negro GI's to find decent homes for their families. But it is also important for the example it sets. Private industry should especially take it to heart.

Large companies should make sure that their Negro employees will be allowed to live wherever they wish and not be restricted to the ghetto. They should let it be known that they will not build in a town which will not treat its employees equally. For most American towns the arrival of a new industry or plant means the difference between growth and prosperity and a slow decline. Big corporations know this and use it to get favorable terms for land and taxes. They need to use this power to assure equal treatment for their employees.

OTHER GOVERNMENT agencies should follow the example of the Defense Department's order and make sure that their Negro employees are not restricted in their choice of a home. The government has been shocking in its neglect of its Negro employees.

For example, the Atomic Energy Commission announced that it would build the world's largest atom smasher and that a factor in deciding on a site for it would be whether the communities under consideration practiced racial discrimination in housing. Then they went ahead and chose Weston, Ill., even though that state has no open housing law. Because of this lily-white choice, many Negroes won't be able to get jobs at the plant.

Even with open housing, some Negroes would probably prefer to live in predominantly Negro communities. But freedom is the right to make choices and have options, and that right is now denied Negro citizens. Because of this, Negro citizens often lose the freedom to choose jobs and schooling. Housing segregation has got to go.

House Republicans Blunt Effort To Bypass State Governments

WASHINGTON (AP) — House Republicans have blunted, if not reversed, the Johnson Administration trend toward granting federal aid directly to local communities.

By insisting that states be made the major channel for such aid, Republicans are giving impetus to a movement already under way that could revitalize state governments.

So far this session the House, with Republicans supplying the most votes, has overridden the administration and voted to put a new crime control program and an existing school aid program under state administration.

Although the Senate has not acted on the legislation, the House votes were so decisive it is unlikely they will be reversed.

NOW REPUBLICANS are determined to enlarge the state's role in the anti-poverty program and it is hard to see how they can be defeated in the House.

Administration forces warn that states are without the people or experience to conduct such programs and that they are unresponsive to needs of cities.

But in fact, the traditional route of federal aid has been through the statehouse and most of it still goes that way. Last year, out of $14.6 billion in federal grants, only $3.8 billion went directly to local agencies.

The significant point for the administration, however, is that the $3.8 billion in direct aid is double the total of a year earlier. Although direct local grants for special purposes have existed since World War II, they have become a major artery of federal aid under Johnson.

THE 89TH CONGRESS enacted 86 new programs providing direct local aid, more than were in existence before then.

The GOP drive against this approach has necessarily been piecemeal, since the Republicans are in the minority. Should they gain control of Congress they could be expected to move across the whole broad front of federal grants-in-aid.

Republican leaders have pledged solid support for a proposal to return to the states a share of federal income taxes for use as each state wants.

If they try to enact such a program in the immediate future, however, the major argument against it will be furnished by the states themselves. For even ardent states-righters agree there is much truth in the criticism that state governments have failed to keep up with the times.

Although court-ordered reapportionment is ending the long domination of rural interests in state legislatures, methods and procedures are still geared to slower times.

IN ONLY 12 STATES do the legislatures meet each year in general legislative sessions. In only 17 is there professional staffing for more than one committee in each house. Only five provide individual office space for members. Eight states fail to provide any secretarial help for legislators.

Such conditions cause concern among believers in a healthy federal-state relationship and efforts to correct them are being made on several levels. The prospect that Republicans will succeed in diverting new federal funds to the states is certain to spur those efforts.

Price Of Educating Our Children Varies Widely Throughout States

By DONNA DICKENSON
ASSOCIATED PRESS

If dollars are the sole measuring rod, a New York pupil gets almost three times the education of a Mississippi child.

New York, the highest school spender of the 50 states, paid out $812 for each pupil in average daily attendance last year. That sum was a little less than three times Mississippi's countrywide low — $315 per child.

Naturally, high spending doesn't guarantee good education.

But there may be some connection: Mississippi also has an illiteracy rate about twice the national average. In 1965 roughly 37 per cent of the state's army volunteers and draftees failed the preinduction mental tests — compared to 21 per cent of the New Yorkers.

This apparent inequality in our "land of equal opportunity" traces largely to the fact that New York has a lower proportion of students and more money to sepnd.

When you calculate school-age children as a per cent of the total population, Mississippi ranks third highest, while New York has the lowest proportion in the country. But if you figure the personal income available per school-age child you'll find New York highest with over $14,000; Mississippi lowest with about $5,000.

The amount spend on each pupil is only one way education policies vary throughout the states, according to the National Education.

Delaward schools, for example, get about 75 per cent of their revenues from the state government; the Nebraska state administration pays only 5 per cent of school costs, with local communities footing about 85 per cent of the bill. Between these wide extremes lies the national average — with 40 per cent of the cost covered by the state and 52 per cent paid by the township.

Mississippi receives about 20 per cent of its school expenses from the federal government — which pays Wyoming only 4 per cent of that state's education costs. The U. S. average is 8 per cent, but the Federal gvoernment usually gives a larger amount to low-income states.

Aid to private and parochial schools — a question which involves the church-state separation controversy — points up more differences among the states. While 20 states authorize transportation for church pupils, 19 forbdi it; six states provide textbooks to non-public schools, but eight prohibit such service.

The inconsistency is carried even further in four states — Iowa, Kentucky, Mississippi, and Massachusetts. They give parochial schools one of the two services — transportation or texts — but forbid the other.

Not only do the states differ among themselves: Some have church school policies at odds with Washington's stand.

The U. S. Supreme Court ruled in 1947 that parochial school transportation doesn't violate the First Amendment's guarantee against the "establishment" of religion. But some state constitutions are even more rigid on this question than the federal Bill of Rights. says the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

Several state courts have found that busing religious school students would crack the "wall of separation" between church and state. The issue is hot in New York, where the state constitutional convention wants to end the ban on aid for church pupils.

Federal aid to education might iron out some of the inequalities and inconsistencies among the states.

The 1965 Elementary and Secondary Education Act benefits religious schools as well as public ones. Non-public pupils can share in educational radio and TV, "dual enrollment" plans, after-school programs, mobile services, and remedial reading instruction.

"The bill puts the emphasis on helping the individual; it assumes that each American child is entitled to a free education, whether he attends public or private school," says Phil King of the National Education Association. "The law is carefully worded to avoid the church-state issue."

Federal aid may also help "spread the wealth" of education dollars. As part of the anti-poverty program, it aims first at low-income areas, covering anything from mobile science laboratories to clothing and shoes for poor pupils.

Gigantic Poverty Battle Ahead

By LOUIS CASSELS

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Victory is not in sight in America's war against poverty.

With the gross national product nearing $800 billion a year—a level of affluence unprecedented in this or any other country—there are still at least 33 million Americans who live in what the government calls a state of poverty.

The 33 million figure is conservative. It is difficult for well-fed Americans to appreciate how hard up they have to be before the government classifies you as poor. The official poverty level for a family of four is an income of $3,120 a year, which means that each member of the family must be fed, housed, clothed, transported and medicated for slightly more than $2 a day.

The number of people living in officialy-acknowledged poverty has declined by about 2 million since 1964—the year in which President Johnson, with congressional backing, pledged America to an all-out attack on poverty.

Because of the heavy cost of Vietnam, neither the President nor Congress has been willing to escalate the war against poverty to the level originally envisaged. For the present fiscal year, President Johnson is asking $2 billion for federal anti-poverty projects under the Office of Economic Opportunity (OEO) and Congress seems reluctant to vote even that much.

If Congress should grant the entire amount requested by the administration, OEO will still be reaching only a fraction of the people who are in need of the particular services it offers. For example, it will be able to provide enough "head start" classes for 733,000 children, or 2.9 per cent of the 2.5 million poor children who urgently require pre-school help.

With the full appropriation sought by the White House, OEO would be able to provide employment in the Job Corps for the neighborhood youth corps for 128,000 youngsters who would otherwise be roaming the streets. But that is only one-fourth of the total number of poor youths who are out of school and out of work.

The picture is the same in other federal agencies engaged in fighting poverty. The President's budget for the 1968 fiscal year, which began July 1, allocates $430 million to provide work training and experience for 212,000 unemployed or underemployed adults. Labor Department officials estimate that is about 10 per cent of the total number of poor adults who need such training in order to become employable.

The poorest of the poor are 8.4 million Americans who are on public assistance or "welfare."

Many middle-class citizens have the impression that welfare rolls are loaded with deadbeats who are living it up at public expense because they're too lazy to work. There undoubtedly are some relief recipients who fit this stereotype. But a statistical breakdown supplied by the U. S. welfare administration indicates that the vast majority of those on public assistance are unemployable by any standard.

More than 2 million — mostly women — are too old to work. Their median age is 75.

Another 700,000 are either blind or so severely disabled that they cannot find any kind of job.

Then there are 3.5 million children under 18 and their 1 million mothers, who are receiving monthly checks under the "Aid to Dependent Children" (ADC) program. Some of the older children and many of the mothers might be employable if they had marketable skills and if day-care centers were available for the younger children who'd be left at home.

The new Social Security bill recently passed by the House stipulated that each state must set up a program for getting families off the ADC rolls by providing job training and day care services.

The welfare administration does not expect dramatic results from this latest manifestation of Congress' perennial irritation with the ADC program. A recent study of mothers drawing ADC payments showed that half of them had less than a 9th grade education.

As for day care, all of the centers now available in the United States have a combined capacity of 350,000 children—and most of them are already filled with children of middle-class working mothers.

The amount of money paid to families on relief would not appear, on dispassionate examination, to offer a great temptation to anyone capable of working.

For the aged poor, relief checks average $68 a month. The blind get a bit more—$87 a month. The controversial ADC program involves the smallest monthly payments of all—averaging $37 per recipient. Wealthy states provide slightly better for dependent children: for example, New York's monthly payments average $55 a person. But a dependent child is expected to live on $9.35 a month in Mississippi, $12.75 a month in Alabama, and $15.20 a month in Florida.

Anyone who would find these sums an inducement for having "welfare babies" must be very poor indeed.

Behind The News

Threat To President In The First Primary

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Administration supporters believe the biggest threat to President Johnson in New Hampshire's first-in-t h e-nation presidential primary will be Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, D-N.Y.

Kennedy insists he will take every legal step possible to keep his name out of the race and all other presidential primary contests. He has pledged himself to campaign for Johnson and Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey whenever and wherever they want him.

But the two-part March 12 primary in New Hampshire is constructed in such a way that no potential candidate can keep his name out of the race if someone wants to put it there.

A growing concern that Kennedy, despite his declared non-interest in the New Hampshire "beauty contest," may pull votes from Johnson is leading to a switch in tactics.

As recently as last March former Gov. George C. Wallace of Alabama was considered the man to defeat in the Democratic primary, to the point where Sen. Thomas J. McIntyre, D-N.H., and Democratic Gov. John W. King were ready to stand as favorite sons so Johnson's name could be kept out.

Then Wallace made a New England tour which attracted little interest and an embarrassing protest demonstration by Dartmouth College students.

Despite civil rights riots threatening to further divide the nation's black and white races, the segregationist ex-governor commands little support in the White Mountain state.

Bobby Kennedy, tousle-haired brother of the late President John F. Kennedy, is another matter. JFK opened his first 1960 campaign headquarters at Manchester, N.H., and the family has strong ties to the state.

A Citizens for Kennedy-Fulbright group was organized in New Hampshire this year to promote Kennedy and Senate Foreign Relations Committee Chairman J. William Fulbright for 1968.

Kennedy replied to two letters from the group, asking them to cease and desist.

Only Kennedy himself can put his name in the presidential preference portion of the March primary and this he will not do. But the second section, and the most telling, allows delegates to the Democratic national conventio to list themselves on a separate section of the ballot as "favorable" to a particular candidate. They also have the alternative of listing themselves as "pledged" to a candidate but they may only do this if the candidate gives his consent in writing and files it with the secretary of state.

Still another avenue opens up through the primary's allowance for write-ins. Voters can write in any name in the presidential preference section and any delegate's name in the delegate contest. It was the write-ins on both sections of the ballot that gave former U.S. Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge a huge victory in the 1964 Republican primary though he took no part in the contest.

Despite the vagaries of the primary, present thinking by administration supporters is the New Hampshire primary race should be limited to delegates. In other words, the names of no candidates would appear on the ballot other than those cited by delegates.

The presidential preference primary has no legal significance. Its results are not binding on the delegate winners but it does have a strong psychological impact.

The Kennedy boomlet has appeared to dissipate lately, perhaps because of the relatively poor showing of candidates for whom he campaigned across 16 states in the 1966 off-year elections.

But any strong showing for him in the nationally spotlighted New Hampshire.

Preventing, Fighting Fires Is Massive, Continuous Job

By EDWIN S. CAPPS

SACRAMENTO (CNS) — It's a long way from a Tulelake (Siskiyou County) potato ranch to a director's office in the big resources agency building in Sacramento.

But James G. Stearns, 45, director of the State Department of Conservation, For one thing, Stearns was a Modoc county supervisor for 16 years. In 1965, he was president of the County Supervisors Association of California.

Right now, Stearns has no problems in his department that a good heavy, statewide rain by Sept. 15 wouldn't solve.

The conservation department, created in 1961, includes the divisions of forestry, oil and gas, soil conservation and mines and geology, and their associated boards and commissions. But forestry is by far the biggest part of the department, accounting for about 2,700 of the 3,200 employees.

To date, this has been a good year for forestry as far as fires on lands under its responsibility, but Stearns and the division won't be resting easy until the first good rainstorm. And, in some years, this doesn't occur until January.

Most of the serious fires this year have been on U. S. Forest Service lands in the Pacific Northwest. The southern California fires are on county lands.

This doesn't mean the State Division of Forestry isn't involved. Not only does it lend crews, as in the case of the big fires down south, but it provides back up duties for the forest service.

"The forest service has moved everything it can out of California to the other western states," Stearns said. "They're about one-deep in personnel so we're providing the backup for them. They would do the same for us if the situation were reversed."

While the division of forestry has had no big fires this year, it's not because there weren't a lot of starts. In the last 10 days of August, there were about 400 fires started in California — about the normal number.

But Stearns credits the success in containing or stopping these burns to the program of initial attack.

The airplane attack involves dropping treated water in the fire areas. Sometimes this is directly on the fire but more often is in the path of the fire. These solutions often will keep fuel from burning for several hours, until the crews can arrive on the fire line.

The total fire fighting crew during the season amounts to about 7,000 persons, including 4,500 from conservation camps for prison inmates. These inmate crews are well trained in their jobs. They are stationed at Susanville, Jamestown (near Sonora), at Chino in southern California and at Garberville on the north coast. They move by buses and can be on the scene in a few hours, with a self-contained camp.

There are a number of smaller camps closer to the fire areas. Some of these were closed by the division under Reagan's economy program but Stearns said their closing has had no noticeable effect on the initial attack on the fires.

"Many of our fires this year were 'people starts'," Stearns said. "There was one boy that set 50 fires in 10 days."

The people who provide the money for operations of the forestry section, the legislature, have had an attitude of downplaying fire prevention until recently. But the budget even now provides about $26 million for fire fighting and only about $1 million for fire prevention.

"Actually, $3 to $4 million of this may be going for prevention," Stearns said. "If we stop a fire before it spreads or prevent it from reaching dwellings, this is a sort of prevention."

Under a comprehensive fire prevention law approved in 1965, the division has the tools to require homeowners in areas of its responsibility to comply with regulations. These regulations cover such things as clearing the ground of fuel near the house and taking other safety precautions.

This Week In The World

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

Schools across the nation began opening for fall terms during the week but many pupils had nowhere to go. Their teachers were on strike.

About 600,000 students were affected from Florida to Connecticut. The biggest strike was in Michigan, where school bells did not ring for a half million students in Detroit and 34 other communities.

New York City was facing a teacher walkout Monday that would leave 1.1 million pupils teacherless. A teachers' strike was in prospect at Randolph, Mass., and walkouts were already underway in Fort Launderdale, Fla., East St. Louis, Ill., and Paducah, Ky.

The big issues were wages and the number of pupils in a classroom. The National Education Association reported earlier in the week the nation's public schools would be short about 171,300 teachers for the record 50.7 million students and in most cases school officials said they simply did not have money for increases.

In Detroit, which has 11,500 teachers and 300,000 pupils, the teachers rejected $500 across-the-board raises and their spokesman said they would "sit it out until Christmas if necessary." Most teacher groups took equally firm stands.

In New York, Albert Shanker, spokesman for the union that represents 54,000 school employees, predicted schools would remain closed at least two months after union leaders rejected a $125 million contract the city said would give most teachers raises of $1,050 during the next two years.

The city's teachers were to submit resignations to skirt a state law prohibiting strikes by public employes. Most school districts faced with strikes were going to court in attempts to get injunctions ordering the teachers to work.

Around The World: Around The Clock

YOUNGSTOWN, Ohio — Police and firemen in this city of 166,000 struck for higher pay, demanding $1,200 across-theboard increases. Only 40 policemen and six firemen were on duty, with 554 members of the two forces remaining away from their jobs.

DETROIT — The United Auto Workers union struck the Ford Motor Co. in a dispute over the union's demand for wage and fringe benefits that would reportedly cost the company an additional $4 per hour per man.

SAIGON — The military ticket of Lt. Gen. Nguyen Van Thieu as presidential candidate and Premier Nguyen Cao Ky as his running mate won a four-year term in South Vietnam elections in which 83 per cent of eligible voters turned out to give the ticket 34 per cent of votes cast. The concensus of American observers was that the election was fair. On the war front, some of the heaviest fighting of the war in northern provinces was reported.

WASHINGTON—Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara announced the United States is building a barrier of barbed wire and "highly sophisticated devices" in a new effort to curb Communist infiltration of men and supplies into South Vietnam from the North.

DETROIT — Michigan Gov. George Romney said on television he had been "brainwashed" during a visit to Vietnam and was reconsidering some of his earlier views in which he said America had every right to be fighting there. Later in the week in Washington he stood by the charge and said the Johnson administration had not been telling the people the truth about the conflict.

"Jes, mi parolas Esperanton."

More San Rafael residents will be able to make that statement — "yes, I speak Esperanto" — as result of the first public night school class in the "international language," which will open next Thursday at 7 p.m. at San Rafael High School.

And by learning Esperanto, they may join a sort of worldwide fraternity, according to Mrs. Conn Murray of Oakland, who will be the instructor, and William L. Simpkins of West Worthing, England, a man who has been touring the world and speaking and boosting Esperanto for over 16 years.

Simpkins, who at 73 is on his fourth world-girdling tour, and Mrs. Murray were in San Rafael yesterday to visit Mrs. Murray's daughter, Mrs. Sandham C. Worswick of 301 Corrillo Drive. And — as he does wherever he visits — Simpkins took the occasion to put in a boost for Esperanto.

For the spry ex-banker, the language invented 80 years ago in an attempt to solve the world's "confusion of tongues" is more than just a means of international communication.

"It's like a universal club," he said. "I call it the world language of friendship."

Simpkins wears a badge which identifies him as an Esperanto speaker. Fellow Esperantists, seeing the badge, stop him on the street to greet him in all sorts of places, he reported. "I meet nice people all over."

The worldwide Esperanto Congress holds its annual holiday in a different country each year. Last year, Simpkins reported, some 4,000 people from 41 countries attended the congress in Budapest. This year it was held in Rotterdam.

The Netherlands is in the forefront of Esperanto promotion. The congress's headquarters is in Rotterdam. And four years ago, the Netherlands Parliament passed a law permitting Esperanto in schools, setting up a department at the University of Amsterdam to train teachers in the "international language," and offering increased pay to teachers who qualified in it, reported Mrs. Murray.

Among the eight to 10 million people the world over who speak Esperanto are many in the United States, the two boosters said.

And the language is catching on in this area.

Seven schools in San Mateo County offer it as an optional foreign language in seventh and eighth grades, reported Mrs. Murray. University of California Extension has an Esperanto class. And next Thursday, San Rafael High's adult school will join the parade.

26-Hour Study Set On Delta Rivers Flow

An intensive 26-hour study of water flows in the Sacramento-San Joaquin rivers delta will be conducted Thursday and Friday, the Army Corps of Engineers announced today at Sausalito.

The study will be used to verify data for the expanded San Francisco Bay and Delta model now being built at the Sausalito office.

Lt. Col. Frank C. Boerger, district engineer, said the expansion of the model is a key tool in projected studies of the delta area.

Seventy-seven boats will be stationed throughout the delta waterways to record surface and underwater flow speeds and other information, with the operation continuous for 26 hours.

Among the flotilla of boats will be six party fishing boats from Sausalito, which will transport measuring crews from Sausalito to the delta.

Joining the project are the U.S. Coast and Geodetic Survey, the U. S. Geological survey, the Coast Guard and auxiliary, the U. S. Bureau of Reclamation, San Francisco Bay Regional Water Quality Control Board, and the state Departments of Water Resources, Harbors and Watercraft, and Parks and Recreation.

Measurements of flow will be made each half hour at five depths in deep water and three depths in shallow waters. Water samples will be taken and air temperatures measured hourly.

Engineers officials briefed the men who will take part in the operation this morning at the bay model building in Sausalito.

Recorder Society Elects Officers

Charles Greenfield of Belvedere has been elected president of the Marin chapter of the American Recorder Society.

The society, which meets once a month for musical sessions, also elected Fay Jensen of Fairfax, vice president; Suzanne Greenfield, secretary, and Donald Baldwin of Corte Madera, treasurer.

Chorale Auditions To Be Held Weekly

Marin's Winifred Baker Chorale will begin its 10th season Wednesday at Angelico Hall, Dominican College, San Rafael. Informal auditions for new members will be held at 7 p.m. with regular rehearsal beginning at 7:45 p.m.

Director Winifred Baker announced that new members may audition any Wednesday during September and that auditions will be closed after that.

New Programs To Affect Most Mill Valley Students

New or changed programs will affect nearly all Mill Valley students returning to school Monday, Supt. James A. Collins has predicted.

At Edna Maguire School, a six-teacher team has been formed for "interdisciplinary" teaching of several subjects. Three teachers will teach English as a team.

A counselor, Mrs. Sanford Delano, will work directly with students and parents and secondarily with teachers. An independent study program, allowing students to organize their study individually with guidance by sponsors and others besides regular teachers, will start after school opens. A double portable classroom has been added for the music program.

In the elementary schools, reading teachers have been added to team-teach with first grade teachers and to help second and third graders with reading problems.

At Alto, all 180 sixth-grade students will be taught by a six-teacher team.

Previously-announced transfers of students from Park to Old Mill School and addition of two teachers at Old Mill will cut class sizes at both schools.

Approximately 120 Mill Valley students will go to Richardson Bay School, Sausalito, in the Mill Valley pupil transfer project. Innovations there include a fifth grade social studies program which will present social organization in lower animals and primitive societies, and an eighth grade "self pacing independent study group" of 25 students chosen at random. The self-pacing group gives the student a measure of responsibility for his own education.

Youth Arraigned

Dennis Darrel Borba, 18, was arraigned in Marin Municipal Court yesterday on a charge of stealing a calf. Plea entry was scheduled for 1:30 p.m. Friday. Borba, of Alex Michal Ranch, Dillon's Beach, allegedly took a heifer owned by Karl Luther Reed of Fallon July 25. The calf was recovered.

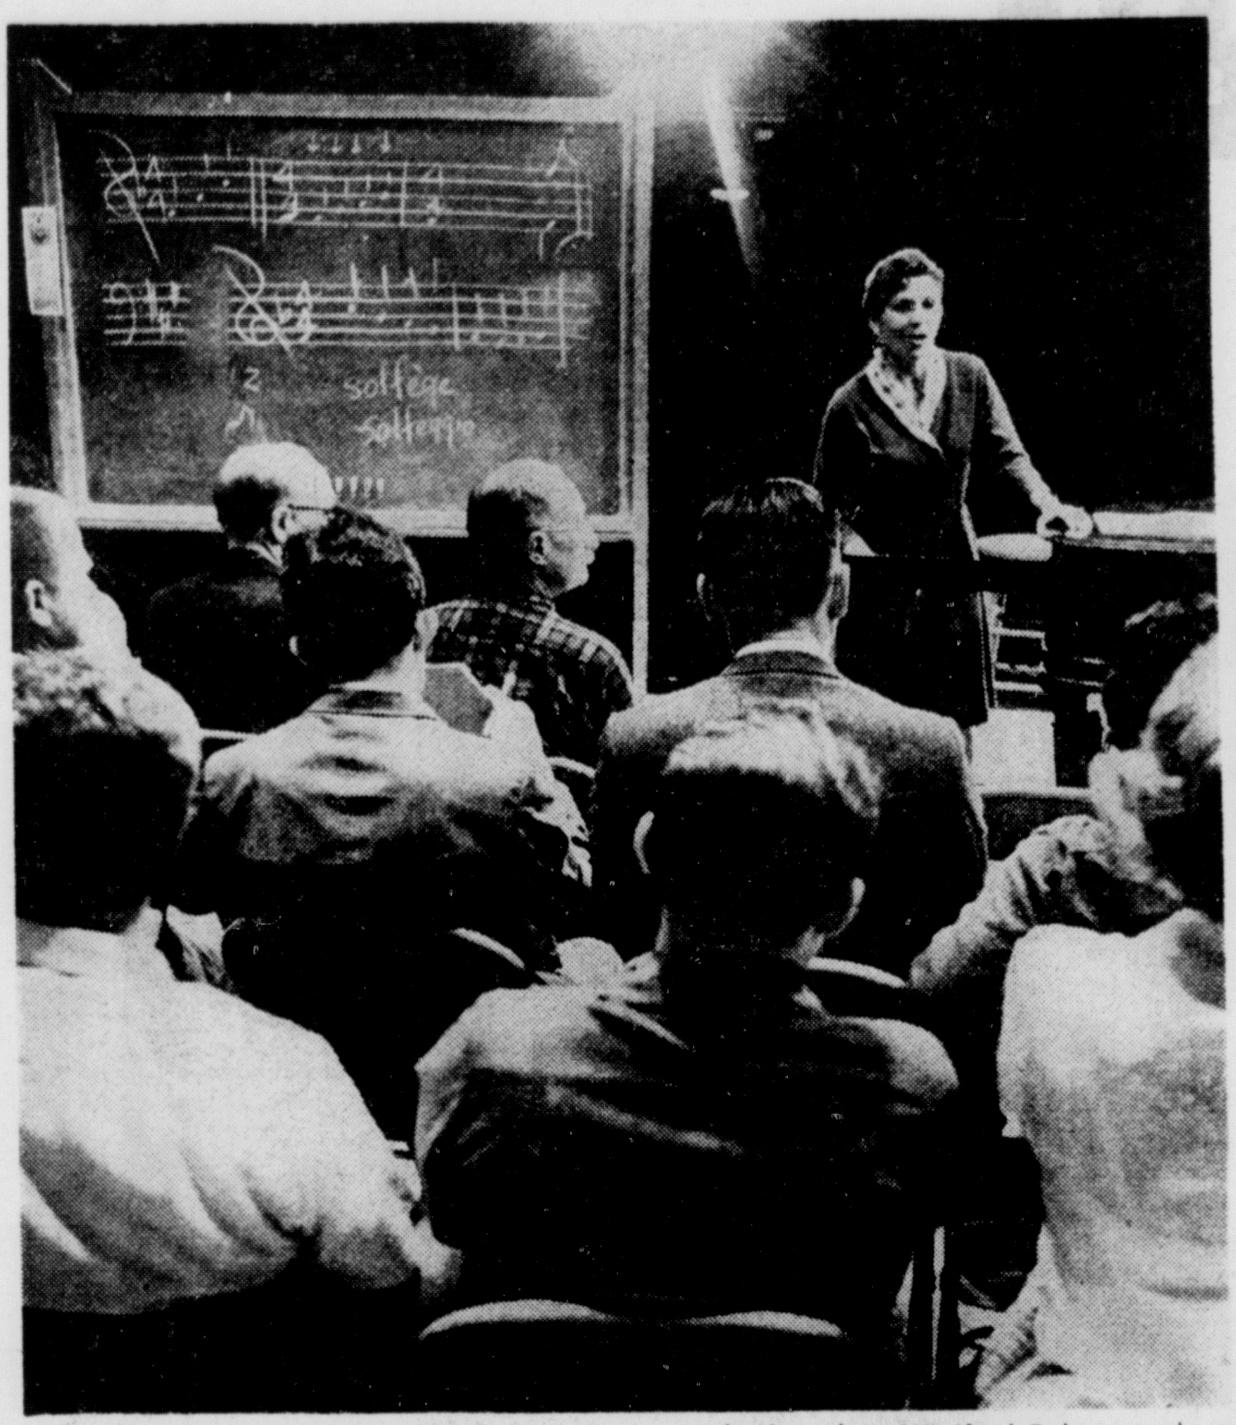
Sight Reading Music Can Be Easy



ONE OF THE MORE ADVANCED lessons is on the board as Winifred Baker speaks to the chorale.

JOSEPH CURATILO, inventor of the simplified sight reading method.

Teacher's New Method Aids Baker Chorale

Mark Twain said of the weather, "Everyone talks about it, but no one does anything about it. This is roughly parallel to the general attitude about sight reading — almost everyone says they can do it but very few actually can.

Now, thanks to Joseph Curatilo, director of music for the Dixie School District, Winifred Baker, director of the Winifred Baker Chorale, and Gene Stewart, lecturer in music at Dominican College, this condition is changing rapidly for 75 or 80 adults in the chorale.

Sight reading can be defined as the ability to look at a piece of printed music and sing or play it correctly without having to learn it by rote. This is more difficult for singers than for instrumentalists since they must find their own pitch.

OBVIOUSLY if members of a singing group, children or adults, can all do this, they can then spend time in polishing and perfecting the performance.

If they cannot, great amounts of time must be spent in going over and over each passage until everyone knows it by heart.

For many years, the various methods of teaching sight reading have been dull, long and not very effective. As a result the great majority of school children, and consequently adults, cannot read music. Until recently, almost everyone accepted this situation as beyond remedy.

BUT NOT Curatilo, whose activity has made the Dixie district's music program one of the finest. Refusing the traditionalist view, he began to experiment several years ago to devise a system which was stripped of all non-essentials, required the minimum in equipment and training, and could be taught by people who were not specialists in music.

After refinement of the system, it was cautiously introduced into a few classrooms. The results were astounding. Children were reading music fluently by the end of one term.

Curatilo prepared a complete set of worksheets and instructions, again very simple, and the program went into effect throughout the district. The results continued to be remarkable.

Then, in a casual conversation with Winifred Baker, the possibility of applying the program to adults arose.

Curatilo System Strips Away Non-Essentials

MISS BAKER was anxious to improve the music reading ability of the chorale, and Curatilo was anxious to test the method on adults.

Early this year with Gene Stewart as the instructor, they tried and again the results were amazing.

Even though the Curatilo system is so simple as to seem almost ridiculous, the chorale members loved it, and in a few weeks, many non-readers were reading passably.

Those who could read found their reading was sharpened, improved.

Curatilo's system is based on what is known as "movable do" and, from the very beginning, has every step both sung and written.

If the instructor has fairly accurate pitch, a piano is not even necessary.

INSTRUCTION in sight reading is given to the chorale for the first half-hour of every rehearsal. Then, as non-readers become proficient, they move out of the class and begin rehearsing with the other readers.

"We are definitely going to continue Curatilo's method next season with Steward as instructor," Miss Baker said.

Last year the Winifred Baker Chorale gave their own concert in Marin and sang with the San Francisco Symphony.

"The chorale did a fine job, but if all our members could have read music, we could have done even better," Miss Baker said. "This year, thanks to this program, we will."

THE CHORALE will resume rehearsals Wednesday at Angelico Hall, Dominican College, San Rafael, starting at 7:45 p.m.

There are openings in all voices, and new members should arrive at 7 p.m. Wednesday, and Sept. 20 and 27th for informal auditions.

GENE STEWART sounds to a note for the chorale members to hear and write.

Petaluma To Point Reyes Stage

By FLORENCE DONNELLY

If you have tried to find the Red Hill roadhouse, as I have for years, give up the search.

Rob Roy of Fairfax, who has the name of a character in one of Sir Walter Scott's novels and the tenacity of his Scottish forebears, has insisted that such a resort did exist.

He said he took the Red Hill Road, which ran from Point Reyes to Petaluma, and saw the roadhouse. He was superintendent of an estate at Black Point and took this road frequently.

You will not find Red Hill Road on the map. A check with county offices revealed that the realigned road is now the Point Reyes-Petaluma Road.

Just when the roadhouse was built and by whom is not known.

VERIFICATION of the existence of the resort is in the obituary of Mrs. Elisa Clement Piccinotti, which said: "One-time operator of a now extinct West Marin landmark . . . Mrs. Piccinotti was 92 years old. With her late husband, Clement, she operated the Red Hill Roadhouse, a bar and watering spot for men and their teams of horses, en route between the Marin coast and Petaluma.

"The roadhouse, which the Piccinottis operated until their retirement in 1921, was on the top of Red Hill on the Petaluma-Point Reyes Road. It was bulldozed to extinction during a road widening."

The arrival of the stage from Petaluma to Point Reyes was a highlight of the day for the roadhouse.

The passengers and the driver would enjoy getting out, stretching their legs and relaxing over a glass of liquid refreshment at the bar, while the horses would be watered and rested.

"SHUTTER BUGS" were not as prevalent in the early days as they are now. It would be wonderful to see a picture of the Red Hill roadhouse.

Perhaps someone has a picture. Many early residents of Inverness recall a stage that ran there from Point Reyes Station. Stages also ran from Nicasio to the station in San Geronimo.

For lack of a real picture, it is necessary to paint a mental image from descriptions left by pioneers.

JAMES WILKINS said: "The stage driver was king. He shone forth a star of the first magnitude. Always calm and collected, he seemed as immovable as fate. Whether climbing a hill that reminded the passengers of going up a chimney, dashing down a declivity with the stage and horses apparently falling through space, or dodging landslides in the winter trips, there never was the least shade of emotion visible in his face. In his capacity he was great, supreme, unapproachable. As a manipulator of the ribbons he left no man behind."

Stages carried mail, some produce and passengers. The roads were ribbons of dust in summer and rivers of mud in the winter. The passengers, wedged together like sardines in a can, sweltered in the hot weather and froze in the cold.

The women swathed themselves in veils to protect their faces from the chocking dust. The men wore long dusters. Children, squirmed and screamed in ther mother's arms. The more delicate females would have a touch of the vapors. Brought to by a whiff of smelling salts, always carried in her handbag, she would shudder and scream as the stage rounded a steep curve or dashed down a hill.

THE YOUNGSTERS clamored for food and mothers delved into a lunch box to bring out a large and smelly garlic sausage sandwich. The delicate female would resort to her smelling salts again. Mothers nursed their babies and the men looked out at the scenery.

When the brakes were applied to the stage as it rolled down a hill, the passengers, packages and valises were jumbled together. There were great sighs of relief when the passengers saw the Red Hill roadhouse before them.

It was a break in the long and tiresome stage journey from Point Reyes Station to Petaluma.

ON ARRIVAL the ladies would go into the parlor where they would be served tea or a light repast. The men congregated at the bar to regale their host with the latest jokes, which were not for ladies' ears, or to relate the latest news.

The Red Hill road was taken

MARIN CLEANERS Phone 454-4792—Member N.I.D. of San Rafael, Bel Aire & Fairfax

"What Happened To The Beads On My New Dress?"

This is an old problem returning. American manufacturers have learned not to use plastic beads, sequins or buttons. However, foreign manufacturers have not.

The National Institute of Drycleaning reports growing complaints about the disappearance of trim and buttons. This has been especially notable on beaded sweaters. Almost all the complaints involve garments with labels from Italy, Hong Kong or Japan.

If your dress bears a foreign label, expect your drycleaner to ask permission to remove the beads or buttons, if possible, and make a charge for replacing them. If it is not possible to remove them, he will be wise to test the trim with solvent. Then he may decide not to clean the garment or to do so only at your risk. The beads on your dress dissolved because they were a plastic which most American manufacturers have long since abandoned.

Red Hill Roadhouse Was Welcome Stop For Riders

by ranchers and their workers who drove their wagons to Petaluma to buy grain and oats for their stock, and perhaps some staples, such as sugar and flour, for their homes.

Women from the coast would travel the road by horse and buggy. They would leave their horses in the livery stables while they shopped. Going to Petaluma was a real expedition in the early days. They would not stop at the Red Hill roadhouse, but their husbands did.

AFTER THE roadhouse was closed and the Piccinottis left and the stages were no longer running, it is said: "the house was not a home." Because it was isolated, business flourished.

However, scandal faded away when the building was razed.

It is evident why the name Red Hill was abandoned. It led to confusion with San Anselmo's natural landmark, Red Hill.

Marin—Shipwatchers' Perch

(Redwood Empire Assn. photos)

Cliffs At Lime Point Offer Splendid View

There are girl watchers, bird watchers and poll watchers, and along Marin's coast there are ship watchers.

Two of the finest ship-watching sites in the world are on the Marin shores, hard by the Golden Gate Bridge, where liners, freighters, tankers, warships, pleasure crafts and sailboats move by in seemingly endless procession.

There are many good vantage points to watch the thousands of vessels which travel to and from the port of San Francisco annually, but the view from Marin is tops.

One fine shipwatching site is at Vista Point at the northern anchorage of the Golden Gate Bridge. For watchers and camera fans this is especially rewarding toward sunset, when the city's towers are etched with falling light. Outgoing vessels, keeping to the starboard, pass close to the point.

One of the least-used viewing points is a site west of the north anchorage, on the cliffs above Lime Point. This takes a little reaching but is worth the effort.

It can be reached through Fort Baker, by road off the Sausalito lateral. At the fort, visitors should pass the public fishing pier, drive under the north approach to the Golden Gate Bridge.

Here the road starts climbing and carries cars steeply up the cliff until eyes are level with the lowest crosspiece of the north tower of the bridge.

Beside an abandoned fortification unmarked Conzelman Road goes west at an elevation of about 500 feet above the water. Park here and wait, for the outbound ships pass almost directly underneath, and you can pick out deckhands and cargo.

Photographers with a wide-angle lens can take in the entire bridge, or with a telephoto extension bring San Francisco's tall buildings up close.

Visitors can return to Highway 101 along Conzelman Road, with a turn eastward through the Fort Cronkhite tunnel, a one-way tube controlled by traffic lights.

George Lenk Develops Recipes, Tries New Ideas On Friends

When George Lenk decided to move a few weeks ago, Sausalito not only lost a resident, it lost the distinction of harboring the only privately maintained lighthouse on the pacific coast.

Indeed, Lenk did maintain a lighthouse, whose beam was used for homing by any number of vessels, for nearly five years. The light was neatly situated on the waterfront terrace of an apartment whose interior was comfortably furnished in such items as stereo recording equipment, telescopes, aircraft monitoring units, and other electronic equipment.

In total, it represents the wide interests of Lenk, who also runs a restaurant.

"I had to give up the lighthouse when I moved to Mill Valley," Lenk explains, "but I wanted a place where I could dock my boat outside the back door." He found such a place in Strawberry's new "Cove" development.

A NATIVE of Hamburg, Germany, Lenk spent a good part of his life as a captain at sea. He grew to know San Francisco through a series of trips to this port. Having sampled fare in mostc itties of the world, Lenk determined San Francisco as the ideal location to open a first class restaurant. He had no restaurant experience, but he had grown up with fine cuisine, and had been trained as a cordon bleu chef.

With these qualifications, and about $29 total cash, Lenk opened the Captain's Galley in 1959.

What has happened since is contradictory to all rules and regulations, particularly in a city noted for lavish dining. The Captain's Galley opened as a fancy sandwich shop, and then, one day in that first year, just emerged as a dinner house. While people in the next block had never heard of it, reservations from others came from New York, Los Angeles, and even Europe.

"PEOPLE told their friends to visit us," Lenk explains. This is logical, for one would hardly be apt to stumble over the place. It is located on Chestnut Street, amongst such unlikely establishments as a five and dime, neighborhood grocery, tv repair shop, and the likes. Parking is impossible. The restaurant does not advertise. Tourist groups are discouraged.

There are none of the surface frills so common to better known glamour restaurants. Customers are subject to the whim and tastes of the owner.

While sounding like a formula for failure, such circumstances were purposely created by Lenk. He delights in pleasing customers who know what dining should be. He has no interest in impressing others, who think they know what it should be.

He sums it all up, by saying, "The moment running my restaurant becomes work, instead of pleasure, I'll close shop, and do my entertaining at home."

DEVELOPING NEW recipes at his kitchen at home, George Lenk once stayed on duty for 28 hours waiting for a new sauce to reach its peak. (Photos by John Nimmo)

THE RESTAURANT interior is a tasteful blending of assorted, and unrelated items. The ceiling is formed by painted egg cartons, the walls display original Renaissance paintings, antique documents, and a copy of eLnk's patent on the "Sexburger."

A whaling harpoon hangs from one section of the ceiling. The restaurant is so small, cocktails must be mixed in the kitchen. The wine cellar is as large as the dining room, for Lenk delights in searching out rare vintages, offered for as little as $3, or as much as $100 a bottle.

Often, Lenk is asked to prepare a special dinner of his choosing for customers and their guests. This sort of thing delights him.

When requested by KQED to serve a 'simple' dinner in studio, for members of a guest panel, Lenk promptly agreed, and followed up with an 11 course European dinner, complete with full silver service, and a soup containing turtle meat flown from Australia for the occasion.

"By any gourmet standard, this is relatively simple fare,"

6 reasons why the Underground Sprinkling System from TORO will end your water-fertilizing chores forever.
The TORO Yard Care Center is the most complete underground sprinkling system ever! It's out of the way . . . the sprinkler heads pop out of the ground, then disappear after watering. Look at these features:
1 You can fertilize your entire lawn with a flip of a switch, using the same sprinkler heads and controller.
2 An automatic moisture control shuts the system off when your lawn has had enough water, and doesn't water in the rain.
3 Special pop-up sprinklers allow complete freedom of design (increase or decrease amount of water after installation with ease)
4 Complete system built for average home water pressures.
5 Versatile Yard Care Center programs various automatic watering schedules (night or day) and provides for future expansion, if desired.
6 Green lawns automatically with the TORO Yard Care Center—free additional information—free estimates.

KEEPING IN TOUCH, Lenk, who speaks five languages, listens to news from throughout the world as well as monitoring communications of air and sea traffic.

NO LONGER a professional seaman, Lenk still spends much of his time on the water aboard a ship named, with a touch of humor, "Escape, 94920" in honor of his zip code.

Lenk told his astonished, but delighted guests.

IN ADDITION to housing electronic gear, Lenk's Mill Valley home boasts a kitchen so well equipped, it would surprise the most sophisticated housewife.

It is here that he develops recipes, experiments, and ultimately tests new ideas on the many friends who have learned that it's worthwhile to drop by on a weekend afternoon.

While running a restaurant is supposed to be a full time job, Lenk finds time to pursue boating, communications interests, sports car driving, and work on a future television series. He also finds himself in demand on the homefront.

"The Cove is a friendly place," Lenk says. "People socialize a lot."

Whenever there's a party — which is often — you can be sure the fare isn't the usual bar-b-que, because George Lenk can resist just about anything, except a chef's hat.

Pixie Place Operates Throughout The Year

Older brothers and sisters have gone back to school and the neighborhood has quieted down, but pre-school children haven't been completely deserted.

While other children are in class they have the Pixie Playground at the Marin Art and Garden Center in Ross, a great place to play.

There are things to climb on, in, around and over—houses, trains and merry-go-rounds.

PIXIE PLACE is a living memorial playground for pre-school children, established in 1952 as a project of the child study group of the Marin Branch of the American Association of University Women.

In 1953, the Evers Memorial Pavilion was built on the grounds as a gift of the Albert Evers of Ross in memory of their son, who lost his life in World War II.

In 1956, Robert Royston of Mill Valley, designer of contemporary playgrounds, volunteered to design a new Pixe Place when it became evident that the playground would become permanent.

THE PLAYGROUND, run by Pixie Parents, has an all-weather building, which is heated in the winter and has bathroom and kitchen facilities. It is open seven days a week and most maintenance and upkeep is performed by parents through working memberships.

Pixie Parents was incorporated in 1958. Membership has grown from 30 families in 1956 to about 400 families at the present time.

The group is best known for its annual Easter Egg Hunt and Fair, which is open to all pre-school children in the San Francisco Bay area. This is the only fund raising event of the year.

In May, Pixie Parents helps with Memorial Day activities at the Art and Garden Center, and in December manages the Christmas Cupboard for the center and puts on a fashion show.

MEMBERSHIP is open to all parents or guardians of pre-school children. A working membership involves dues of $7.50 a year plus a minimum of eight hours service. A non-working membership involves no service, but dues are $20 a year.

Award Deserving Nature Tale Of Fox, Hound And The Hunt

By DON KEOWN

THE FOX AND THE HOUND by Daniel P. Mannix, Dutton, 255 pages, $4.95.

THEY CAME FROM THE SKY by E. H. Cookridge, 257 pages, $6.95.

HELL GATE by James Dawson, David McKay Co., 245 pages, $4.95.

Daniel P. Mannix's "The Fox and the Hound" deserves its 1967 Dutton Animal Book Award, and any other laurels that might come its way.

It is the most brilliant performance to date by a man who has already demonstrated a remarkable affinity for writing about nature and particularly about animal life.

In this utterly realistic novel, his two chief characters, Tod the red fox and Copper the half-bred bloodhound, are natural enemies. It is the purpose of the hound and the man he acknowledges as Master to bring the fox to bay and destroy him. Yet, somehow, dog and fox seem as much allies as foes. Their runs, their battles of wits and skills, are a part of nature's continuing scheme — almost a game, although, for the fox, at least, a deadly one.

Both fox and dog are portrayed sympathetically, but not sentimentally, and in great depth.

Mannix has spent long hours observing the animals, particularly foxes, before writing. That preparation enables him to give us a graphic, fascinating picture of what life is like for these very clever and courageous little creatures. The tactics used by the fox when hounds and men are on his trail are revealed in the action of the hunt, and are more absorbing than any book about man's military strategy.

Some will question Mannix's practice of giving both fox and dog mental processes that closely approximate man's reasoning. Has he "over-humanized" his four-footed heroes? But in a brief appendage to his book, Mannix answers such criticism effectively and satisfactorily, admitting his limitations and supporting his decisions.

One is convinced, then, that in as much as is humanly possible, Mannix has, indeed, presented an authentic picture of how the fox uses his wits and natural gifts, particularly his remarkable ability to scent, to survive and to escape his enemies. Actions and reactions of the hound are no less believable.

It is one measure of the extraordinary capabilities of Mannix that he has made hunting, even for this reader with a strong dislike of the blood sports, at least temporarily acceptable, even exciting, as reading fare. For fox and hound it is a natural part of their way-of-life. Only man intrudes with his guns, traps, horses and poisons.

INSPIRED, no doubt, by the success of his "Set Europe Ablaze" in this country, Thomas Y. Crowell Co. has now published an American edition of British author-correspondent E. H. Cookridge's "They Came From the Sky."

This book appeared in Europe in 1965 and won such critical praise in London as "exciting from start to finish" from the Times, and "a book that cannot be read without emotion and cannot easily be put down . . ." from the Telegraph.

Cookridge covers much the same general area as he did in "Set Europe Ablaze," but this time he focuses upon three particular heroes of World War II espionage.

They are Harry Ree, Francis Cammaerts and Roger Landes, British officers parachuted into occupied France by Britain's supersecret Special Operations Executive agency to direct the French underground in its resistance and sabotage, and to prepare for the coming Allied invasion.

At the time these modest men did not appear especially qualified for heroic roles. Two were school teachers, one an architect. And two had harbored misgivings about the morality of war. But under fire and in great peril, all demonstrated resourcefulness that was exceeded only by their courage.

Cookridge tells their stories individually, relating their exploits graphically and in detail. He demonstrates again that he is without a peer as a chronicler of true espionage. And that the wartime agent makes the ideal subject for a study of courage under extreme stress.

Like James Bond, Cookridge's subjects sometimes found themselves involved with beautiful women. But these were women who matched the men in patriotism and bravery, and worked side by side with them.

One comletes the book in full agreement with the Glasgow Herald that "the stores he tells are really more exciting than the pipe dreams of the late Ian Fleming."

AND STILL the "spy thrillers" continue to pour from the presses.

"Hell Gate," a first novel by former newspaper reporter James Dawson, now a Washington D.C. public relations man ,is a passable if not exceptional entry in the field.

News correspondent Stuart Dunbar starts out in search of his missing scientist brother who has developed a device capable of stopping cold all electronic and electrical activity, a weapon of terrifying military potential in the wrong hands. His hunt brings him into conflict with a mysterious, ruthless and ambitious private organization.

Much of the story takes place on an ocean liner crossing the Atlantic, but the wind-up is on a lonely, supposedly uninhabited island in the New Hebrides.

Dawson's use of the island locale off the Scottish coast is excellent, and his climax packs a lot of action.

The weakness of the book is that his characters are not presented in sufficient depth to really grip the reader's interest. Villains are shadowy rather than sinister, the heroes bland rather than heroic or human. It is a serious flaw for a book of this genre. But, still, "Hell Gate" will do for an evening of escape reading if you have exhausted all the available fare from the real masters of the espionage tale.

Sleuths & Suspense

SOMETHING WRONG by Elizabeth Linington, Harper & Row, 183 pages, $4.95. Reviewed by Don Keown.

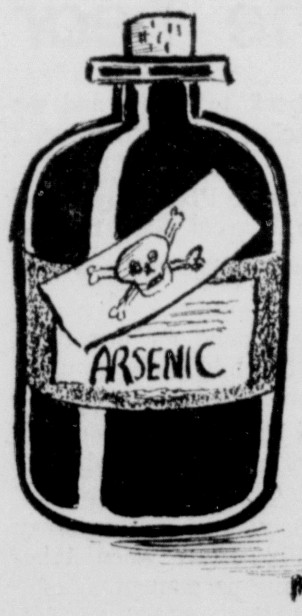
To say that there is a "sameness" about Elizabeth Linington's crime novels should not be construed as criticism.

True, each book involves the personnel of Hollywood's busy Wilcox Street precinct house simultaneously in a number of investigations of crimes of varying seriousness and complexity. But within those bounds, the author demonstrates a considerable degree of originality. And no one can quarrel with the consistently high quality of her writing as well as her plotting.

"Something Wrong" has Sgt. Ivor Maddox and colleagues, all interesting and believable characters, engaged in a hunt for the kidnappers of an infant, probing the cause of death of a pregnant teen-ager, seeking a gun-happy holdup man and involved in a number of other perplexing problems. As always, Miss Linington's multiple denouements are surprising while remaining well within the bounds of reality demanded by her semi-documentary technique.

THOSE WHO WALK AWAY by Patricia Highsmith, Doubleday, 229 pages, $4.50. Reviewed by Don Keown.

Doubleday has labeled this a "Crime Club Special," and has predicted that it will become "a classic of the suspense novel . . ."



In several aspects, it is extraordinary.

The scene is Venice .The two protagonists are Ray Garrett, an American whose young wife has recently committed suicide, and his father-in-law, Ed Coleman, who blames his son-in-law bitterly for his daughter's death.

It soon becomes apparent that Coleman's embitterment has become a madness, and that he is determined to kill Garrett. The novel deals with the ensuing hunt.

Texas-born Miss Highsmith, now living in England and the author of "Strangers on a Train" and other books, uses the Venetian background brilliantly. The interplay of characters is often well done. There is considerable conflict.

What was missing for this reader was the ability to really identify with and care about the fate of Garrett. He is such an ineffectual creature that it is difficult to accord him concern or sympathy.

Still, it is off-the-beaten-track, and well above the average as a suspense yarn.

MURDER IN OUR MIDST by Agatha Christie, Dodd, Mead, 444 pages, $5.95. Reviewed by Don Keown.

The publisher has put together three previously printed mystery novels by Miss Christie into what is certainly a prize-winning package.

All are Miss Marple tales — "The Body in the Library," "The Murder in the Vicarage" and "The Moving Finger."

These are delightful examples of just why Miss Christie remains the unchallenged titleholder among all the who-done-it writers. If there is anything better than one Agatha Christie novel, it is two. And as for three — sheer pleasure! Even when the stories are being read a second or third time, these remain so.

Narrative History Has 'Sense Of The People'

Reviews Of New Reading

THE FRONTIERSMEN, by Allan W. Eckert. Little, Brown and Co., 588 pages, $8.95. Reviewed by Bryce W. Anderson.

"The Frontiersmen" is a remarkable narrative. In an author's note, Allan W. Eckert declares, "This book is fact, not fiction," and goes on to say that even the dialogue — of which there is much, is reconstructed from diaries or notes. "In no case has there been any 'whole-cloth' fabrication or fanciful fictionalization," he declares.

The account, however, is highly fictionized in treatment.

"The Frontiersmen" is a historical narrative of the development of Kentucky and the Western Reserve, and the Indian fights that it involved. It is built primarily around the life of Simon Kenton, a frontier leader in the tradition of Daniel Boone — who was his friend. The second principal figure is the Indian leader Tecumseh, whose death in battle beside the Thames River of Ontario in the War of 1812 virtually concludes the account.

There are lapses in the biographical accounts of these two, for they were fighting men of the frontier who moved about and left no records. Kenton could not read nor write. Tecumseh could, but he wrote neither letters nor diary. However, through extensive research, Eckert has filled in most of the blanks.

Though "The Frontiersmen" is fictionalized, it is nevertheless true history in accurately recording events. And it brings a truth that escapes most of the scholarly but dry accounts of historians: a sense of the people, of how they lived and thought, of "the way things were."

In readability, it ranks with such somewhat similar books as "Drums Along the Mohawk" and "Roger's Rangers." It is the kind of book one does not willingly lay aside until he has read the whole 588 pages.

Marin Ministers On Morals, Role

THE OPEN END OF CHRISTIAN MORALS by Wesley C. Baker, Westminster Press, 170 pages, $2.25.

THE POSITIVE USE OF THE MINISTER'S ROLE by David C. Jacobsen, Westminster, 111 pages, $3.25. Both reviewed by James E. Williams.

Rev. Wesley Baker, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of San Rafael until last month, may rock the purists with his new thesis on Christian morals. But for the probing mid-20th century Christian, Reverend Baker is right on beam. He is not afraid to challenge hidebound codes. For example, he cites the present legislative entanglement over therapeutic abortions in California.

". . . The Roman Catholic Church, supposedly always on the side of humanity and justice, is strangled by its own quixotic moral theology, and is forced to stay on the side that has to put the letter before the spirit. Its own image is legalistic instead of relational. Protestants need not smirk; their tradition is not necessarily so widly different."

Reverend Baker, who is now involved in ecumenical work with the United Presbyterian Church, USA, in New York City, stresses the situational approach to Christian ethics through such Biblical precepts as found in the Sermon on the Mount. From this he concludes, all kinds of ethical problems, including those involving sex, can be dealt with responsibly.

Turning from the moral fiber of a Christian, Rev. David C. Jacobsen, minister of Sausalito's Presbyterian Church and a staffer at San Francisco Theological Seminary in San Anselmo, takes a look at the role of a minister in today's church.

REV. WESLEY BAKER
A new thesis

REV. DAVID JACOBSEN
Writes of job

In the preface he remarks: "The sweetest music he (a minister) hears is the voice of a respected parishioner telling him, 'You don't really seem like a minister at all.'"

Even though a minister is sometimes treated as a third sex, Reverend Jacobsen claims no profession offers richer opportunity for a person-to-person contactn.

Strategy For Dropping Extra Weight Rapidly

THE DOCTOR'S QUICK WEIGHT LOSS DIET by Dr. Irwin Maxwell Stillman and Samm Sinclair Baker, Prentice-Hall, 204 pages, $5,95. Reviewed by Maxine Keown.

Most dieting theorists advise that the best tactic against obesity is a slow, steady loss of weight over a relatively long period of time.

Dr. Stillman is one who adopts the opposite course.

The most effective method of getting rid of excess weight, he asserts, is through a diet that eliminates surplus avoirdupois rapidly. The concept of a slow, gradual loss of weight just doesn't work for many, he claims.

Actually, Dr. Stillman's book doesn't propose a single dieting schedule, but instead a number of alternate plans, some 60 in all. The stress is not simply upon consuming fewer calories, but also upon a more complete burning up of those that are consumed.

One thing the doctor does demand — a strict compliance with his instructions, once the dieting has begun. The book, however, is not limited to menu information, but also attempts to bolster the dieter with strategy that will help him to keep to the rigorous road leading to bodily propositions in keeping with good health.

Any overweight person considering a diet — and medical authorities are virtually unanimous in endorsing that course for the overweight — would be wise to discuss a contemplated program with their personal physician. This is no exception.

But Dr. Stillman's own credentials are of the highest, he being a diplomat in internal medicine, a fellow in the American Geriatric College and the American College of Angiology and an attending and consulting physician in medicine at Coney Island Hospital and Harbor Hospital in New York.

Congo Doctor Battles Disease, Superstition

ANOTHER HAND ON MINE. The Story of Dr. Carl K. Becker of Africa Inland Mission, by William K. Petersen. McGraw-Hill Book Co. 228 pages. 5.50. Reviewed by Barbara Hosmer.

Living out more than 35 years of his life in the Ituri forest of the Congo, where man is secondary to the vegetation and animal life, Dr. Carl K. Becker with his wife, Marie, has devoted his efforts to combat the diseases and superstitions of the Congo peoples.

When the bad times came to the Christian missionaries there, the people begged the Beckers to stay on and work. But violent Simba terrorists forced all whites to flee, and the doctor and his wife settled at a mission across the border in Uganda.

Nearly a year later in 1965 Dr. Becker ventured to return and found the Congolese running the mission hospital and those he'd trained doing surgery as best they could. Finally he arranged to return permanently and despite suffering heart attack, he supervised the opening of clinics through the inaccessible northern area of the huge country.

Mankind's Food Needs, Fads

FOOD AND NUTRITION by William H. Seabrell Jr., James J. Haggerty and the editors of Life, Time Inc., 197 pages, $3.95. Reviewed by Maxine Keown.

This newest Life Science Library series book uses the now familiar picture essay technique to explore another subject of overriding current and future interest.

It is an effective means of presenting a general, quickly absorbed and easily understood survey of a complex and controversial field.

Sebrell, an internationally known nutritionist, is the key man. He is responsible for material that touches on mankind's food needs, the way in which he has met (and sometimes failed to or more than met) those needs, and the grim future prospects for the feeding of a soaring population figure. Realistically, in the last regard, he does not pin his hopes on expansion of food production alone, but underlines the need for population control.

There is a chapter, too, on food fads and frauds. But in denouncing the exaggerations and enthusiasms of others, Sebrell seems to have sometimes overstated his own — and the establishment's — case. For instance, there is a considerable body of scientific evidence, just as there is to the contrary, that a great deal of our food today is, indeed, over-refined and damaged irreparably nutritionally. The charges of the likes of Gayelord Hauser (whose "New Guide to Intelligent Reducing" has been reprinted as a 75-cent Crest paperback by Fawcett) may not have been proven to the satisfaction of many scientists. But they also have the support of others, and can hardly be properly classified as "myth."

Sebrell's discussion of overeating and the accompanying problem of reducing is especially interesting and timely, as is the study of a leading New York chef at work in his kitchen.

The Life pictures, as always, are first-rate, expertly reproduced.

NEW BOOKS FOR JUNIOR READERS

THE FRONTIERSMAN has always been a popular folk hero of American children, but often not for the proper reasons. "Let's Be Early Settlers with Daniel Boone" (Harper & Row, $2.95) by Peggy Parish, with drawing by Arnold Lobel, is designed to bring a new authenticity to the play-acting of boys and girls as they pretend to be back in the days of the pioneers. There are illustrated instructions on such projects and skills as knot-tying, making clothing (for dolls), making a coonskin cap (from paper), manufacturing dyes, assembling a model spinning wheel and constructing a fort.

American biologist Jeffrey J. W. Baker and Czech photographer Jaroslav Salek have joined their talents with fine results in the book "Patterns of Nature" (Doubleday, $3.95).

For 4-year-olds through 8-year-oods, Salek's color photos and Baker's simple text present for the child a true, realistic picture of how the laws of nature function for animals and plants.

Baker has not written down to his young audience. Instead, he addresses them very much the same as if they were grown-ups, and suggests that teachers or parents can help when more difficult words or ideas are encountered.

It is a new approach to a subject sometimes confused by sentimentality or mythology, and a worthwhile one in view of the increasing ability of today's children to grasp ideas and to comprehend.

Some other new books for junior readers:

The African "jewel rush" was one of history's great adventure chapters, with a man at his courageous best and his greedy worst. Edwin P. Hoyt, a veteran writer of true adventure for young readers, tells the colorful story in his The Jewel Hunters" (Atlantic-Little, $4.25). For the young buff of American history, this chronicle from other lands with a striking similarity to our own in its earlier days will have a strong appeal.

"Revolution!" (Little, Brown, $4.75) by Sarel Eimerl deals with turbulent France 1789-1794. The author has done a good job of placing in sharp focus the central characters of that most significant time. And the story is told in an exciting, dramatic fashion.

Ruth Fedder's A Girl Grows Up," first published in 1939, has become something of a classic as a book for young people, recommended by school guidance counselors, librarians and home economics teachers. Many see it as the best thing of its kind in the way of commonsense advice for the teenage girl confronted almost daily with new and perplexing problems. Now a new fourth edition, selling for $4.95, has been published by McGraw-Hill. Previous chapters have been augmented and updated, and some new sections have been added to bring the guidance into conformity with the changed times. There's a reference guide to schools and colleges.

A charming new story is "When I Was Jersey, by James Playsted Wood, with pictures by Sheila Greenwald (Pantheon, $3.50). A little boy left with aunt has many great adventures because of his ambition is not to be just a fireman or a postman or any of the ordinary ambitions — but to be a cow. For fourth through sixth grade readers, but also a book to be read aloud for younger readers.

"The Bat Boy" (McGraw-Hill, $1.95) by Dominick Ardovine is the first person story by the bat boy of the New York Mets of the National League, taking his young readers through one week of his diamond duties. It is part of a series of such books introducing boys and girls to occupations of special interest to their age group. Junior big league buffs will enjoy thoroughly young Ardovino's revelations, accompanied as they are by photgraphs of that young man in and out of the ballpark.

"Elider" (Walch, $3.75) by Alan Garner offers a tale of fantasy and medieval history for young readers 11 through 14. Four British children through a strange chain of events find themselves plunged back into time into the world of Elider and confronted with terrible dangers. In England, the book was runner-up for the 1965 Carnegie Medal awarded by the British Library Association, and was described by the London Times Literary Supplement as "intelligent, rich and terrifying."

The more American youngsters become acquainted with Henry David Thoreau, the better for our future. A pleasant and impressive introduction is offered through Henry David Thoreau: A Man For Our Time (Viking, $4.50). James Daugherty has selected pieces from Thoreau's writing that reflect his thinking and vision, and has added bold, dynamic illustrations.

Lou Myers offers his "Tutti-Frutti" (Pantheon, $3.50) as a rollicking reading romp for all ages. There's an uproar in the jungle when Popsicle, the ice cream vendor, arrives to sell his wares to the likes of Mildred the hippo and Kerensky the beat crocodile, Myers' art work is as wild as his text, which will be read and enjoyed at different levels by widely separated age groups.

POET'S CORNER

FULL-TIDE

Safe are we — and cozy
By the crackling fire we sit —
No sound, except the keening
Of a sea bird, fills the air.

Our thoughts meander
To a day once known —
When through the rain we gambled
Hand in hand,

And skipped between the trees
Whose branches bent
Beneath the load of rain
And wind unspent,

While blackening clouds
Prevented sunlight's beams
From lighting earth and sky,
As on we ran.

And now — in quiet, soft repose,
We sit and ponder more
Of heartbeats' kindled love
Along our mid-lives' changing shore —

As from our window we can see
The full-tide coming in,
And sea gulls, soaring, wings spread wide,
Dip low, while dreams we spin.

SAN ANSELMO — MARGARET WHITESIDE

On The Stereo Scene

By JOHN SUNIER

PAGES FROM THE NOTEBOOK OF ANNA MAGDALENA BACH — New York Chamber Soloists — Decca DL 79426:

This is one of the most delightful LP's to be released recently in the Baroque or Classical area of concert music. This "notebook" belonged to the second wife of Johann Sebastian Bach, and was crammed to overflowing with compositions not only by Papa Bach but also by some of his illustrious sons and other composers of the period. The composers of some of the little pieces are difficult to ascertain. There is a perfect balance in the selections made by the New York Chamber Soloists for this LP.

Charles Bressler's clear and true tenor voice is heard in some of the vocal selections, Albert Fuller is the fine harpsichordist playing the keyboard works, and many other selections are performed by up to an added quintet of other instruments. There are several little dance ditties, some exquisite little marches, and among the songs is one about the pleasures of pipe-smoking.

HAYDN: Concerto in D Major for Harpsichord and Orchestra; BACH: Brandenburg Concerto No. 5 in D Major — Sylvia Marlowe, harpsichord / Baroque Chamber Orchestra/Daniel Saidenberg, cond. — Decca DL 710130:

One of the most perfect concerti for harpsichord and orchestra, the Haydn D Major has long been part of Miss Marlowe's repertory, and now she has given it to us in a new stereo version. It has to be the best at hand, and the sound is unusually fine. It seems Decca could have found a better coupling than with a Brandenburg Concerto, when the trend now is complete sets of all six Brandenburgs. But this small duplication is nothing when the major item of interest is so good.

VITTORIO RIETI: Concerto for Harpsichord and Orchestra; Partita for Flute, Oboe, String Quartet and Harpsichord Obbligato — Sylvia Marlowe, harpsichord/ Con. cond. by Samuel Baron/ Par. cond. by Miss Marlowe— Decca DL 710135:

The "First Lady of the Harpsichord" in America has been a champion of the Rieti music for many years. His temperament is predominantly lyric, clever and humorous in a lightweight way. A similarity to Alec Wilder comes to mind. The Partita was written in 1945, and the now-deleted performance on Capitol by Miss Marlowe must be admitted to be superior to this new one.

However, this is a first for the Harpsichord Concerto, a 1955 composition of some quality. It is very surprising that Rieti hasn't had more attention, considering the attractiveness and easy approachability of his sophisticated music. Perhaps this LP will help to improve matters.

BRITTEN: Les Illuminations; DELLO JOIO: Meditations on Ecclesiastes—Janice Harsanyi, soprano (in Britten only)/The Princeton Chamber Orchestra/Nicholas Harsanyi, cond.—Decca DL 710138.

This is the second recording of Britten's work based on Arthur Rimbaud's exceedingly obscure poetry. The first features a tenor soloist instead of a soprano as in this one. Britten's non-operatic vocal works haven't appealed much to this writer, and when he chooses deliberately to be obscure and use a French libretto when he is an English composer composing in the United States, I give up entirely.

However, the orchestral effects are undeniably varied and colorful. The Dello Joio work is for string orchestra and depicts rather programmatically the various lines of "a time to kill, a time to heal, etc." It was awarded the 1958 Pulitzer Prize for music and is a vigorous and vital work.

WALTON : Symphony No. 1 (1935) — London Symphony Orchestra/Andre Previn — RCA Victor LSC-2927:

First stereo discing of this tuneful and exciting symphony, replacing an old Westminster mono album conducted by Sir Adrian Boult.

Echos of Walton's popular "Belshazzar's Feast" will be heard in this tension-ridden work. Walton has not written very much music, but what he has deserves the attention it receives in Britain and should have more attention in the United States.

Andre Previn has suddenly blossomed into an excellent orchestral conductor, from a background quite contrary to most conductors' experience. His repertory has also been excellent, concentrating on less over-recorded works, mostly by Russian composers.

CHARLES IVES: — Piano — Sonata No. 1 (1902-1910) — William Masselos — RCA Victor LSC-2941:

Masselos here presents the first stereodiscing of the sonata which he gave its world premiere in 1949.

The popularity of the second sonata, "Concord," has overshadowed this amazing piece. It is more brash and outgoing than the transcendentalist Sonata No. 2. Some of the sections will remind the listener of other Ives passages, quoting as they do old church hymns, "How Dry I Am," "Oh, Susannah," and a raucous setting of "Bringing In the Sheaves," which provides of the high moments in the sonata.

Ives piles up so many melodies and so much sound that a score is almost required to really appreciate what he has done here. But even that would not be an accurate authority, for Masselos' edition of the music allows space for improvisation according to the wishes of the pianist.

If Ives was living today, people would probably say the whole sonata is a wild improvisation of a composer high on LSD!

Airport Hotels Brace For Big Jets

LARGE PLANES, such as Pan American World Airways 747 Superjet Clipper, will mean more passengers seeking accommodations at airport hotels and motels. Passengers are shown in a section where seating is nine-abreast and there is a wide screen for feature length movies, and individual headsets available featuring eight channels of stereo music.

Will the new jumbo jets result in a ney type of jumbo hotel around the nation's airports?

The first jumbo jets, the Boeing 747's with space to carry 500 passengers, are scheduled for introduction in just two years in September of 1969 and already airport hotels around Chicago's O'Hare Field are bracing for the impact on their first landing.

Currently there are about 3,500 hotel and motel rooms in close proximity to the airport, and their managers are not unconcerned about how they will handle the huge influx of guest when the big jumbo jets start landing at O'Hare.

"THE TIME is getting short, and we have to start doing more than just thinking about handling the vast increase of people who will be flying," noted Gilbert E. Rosenbrier, general manager of O'Hare Inn, biggest of the hotels adjoining the airport.

O'Hare Inn has 500 rooms on its 32 acres of property north of the airport. "Just one jumbo jet planeload will fill all our rooms," said Rosenbrier nervously. "What'll we do when dozens of jumbos start arriving?"

"Tomorrow's air problems, with domestic plane traffic expected to triple in ten years, is on the ground rather than in skies," Rosenbrier stated.

The immensity of the jest expansion in the next decade is indicated in the dimensions of the jumbo 747, which will accommodate the same number of passengers as three or four 707's.

GETTING passengers in and out could be a major bottleneck, but the 747 will have ten entry gates and will be able to take on a full load in ten minutes.

But even bigger than the 747 is the Lockheed L-500, now being developed for military use, but projected as a passenger plane flying 844 people in three levels catered to by 24 stewardesses.

"It's one thing to quadruple plane loads in the skies where there is plenty of room, but quite another to handle the same kind of passenger growth on the ground," said Rosenbrier. "Hotel accommodations will need to grow apace and will require almost as much planning as development of the new jumbos to keep up with the air transportation boom.

"IN ADDITION to room facilities, there are such additional problems as the simple matter of transporting huge crowds of guests from airport terminals to hotels. The traffic problems at O'Hare currently will seem like a country road compared to a busy downtown intersection when jumbo jet passengers start clogging access roads and parking lots."

He pointed out that currently there is an average of 1.2 passengers per vehicle entering airports and he predicts that steps will have to be taken to regulate access to airports by cars when the jumbos arrive. "Traffic jams and parking will be impossible."

"It well may be that a system of satellite terminals some distance off will be established to organize and transport passengers directly to the planes on which they are leaving. Possibly airport hotels could serve in the future as such satellite check-in terminals, particularly on overseas flights where passengers sometimes arrive from smaller cities the night before their departure."

Another airport hotel problem is expected to be noise in the vicinity of airports when the supersonic jets flying 1800 miles an hour for a 3½ hour flight from Chicago to Europe are due to arrive in the mid-70's. With engines nearly four times as powerful as the largest jets now in use, low-frequency jet noise will mean necessary soundproofing of an all airport hotel construction.

ROSENBRIER said that hotels and motels have throughout history been an offshoot of transportation, starting with wayside inns to handle travelers in horse-drawn coaches, then city hotels when railroads began and motels in the 20's when cross-country travel by car got started.

"Those early tourist cabins were the start of the big business of providing lodgings in outlying areas away from big cities. Eventually with the growth of plane travel, it evolved to today's luxury airport hotels designed to accommodate the business travelers, who still constitute 60 per cent of all plane traffic.

"With jumbo jets the airport hotel business will no doubt double and triple to meet the demands of plane passengers who will want convenient facilities close to transportation, as they always have in the past.

"Jumbo jets will undoubtedly mean jumbo hotels as big if not bigger than the biggest of downtown hotels today."

Rough And Ready Now Old Shacks

Rough and Ready, that colorful little ghost town up in the Mother Lode country, was well named.

During the Gold Rush days, points out the National Automobile Club, most towns in the Mother Lode country were fairly boisterous and blazing, but somehow or other, Rough and Ready had its moments when it outshone them all.

There was the time when they decided to launch their social life by throwing their first dance. Six women and 250 men attended that dance. There might have been a shortage of women, but there was no shortage of fights. A new one broke out about every two or three minutes.

AND AT least half-a-dozen times during the evening some happy miner in the room below the dance hall would delight himself by playing the practical joke of pulling out his trusty forty-five and blasting up through the dance floor.

There was the time when the miners caught a crooked gambler cheating at cards in a local saloon. They shot him on the spot. That was routine procedure in Rough and Ready.

On this particular occasion, however, they decided to have some more fun at the gambler's expense.

THEY LAID him out on the nearest pool table and started placing bets on the precise moment at which he would pass.

There was the time when one of the town notables met a violent end and most of the citizens went out to the graveyard to see the burial. During the service, someone in the crowd noticed that the earth turned out for the grave now was rich in gold ore. That broke up the burial right there. They didn't even give the minister a chance to finish his prayers.

IN A frantic few minutes, the miners had staked out their mining claims all around the corpse.

The really big moment for Rough and Ready came in 1850 when, with a hifalutin proclamation, they seceded from the United States of America, adopted their own constitution, and set themselves up as The Great Republic of Rough and Ready. This movement was soon ridiculed out of existence and Rough and Ready returned to the Union.

In a few short years, however, the gold was gone and Rough and Ready was gone too. Today all that remains of the tough little town belies its belligerent past. There's just a few old shacks resting in the shade of some aging trees in the center of a green meadow in our own Sierra Nevada. Rough and Ready just isn't very rough and ready any more.

Good Tools—Good Job

SUMMER GARDENS PROVIDE a wealth of flowers for indoor use. They can be kept in good condition if common-sense procedures are followed.

Late Afternoon Best For Cutting Flowers

The length of time your cut flowers will last is determined by how and when you cut them, how you treat them immediately afterward, the container in which you arrange them and whether or not you use a preservative.

The best time of day to cut flowers from your garden is late afternoon because their sugar content is higher then and helps them to keep longer. Second-best time is early morning.

When you go into the garden to gather flowers take along a pail of water the same temperature as the outdoor air. Thus, in a cool morning, the water will be cool; in a hot afternoon, it will be warm. Pop each flower stem into water as soon as you cut it.

When you finish cutting, take the pail into the house and set it in a cool, draft-free place. Leave it there for at least an hour. During this time the flowers become adjusted to the different conditions indoors.

Then line up your containers and view them with an eye to their water-holding capacities. Tall, narrow vases which hold little water must be refilled each day, sometimes twice daily, so flower stems will remain in water.

Wide, flat bowls may not allow sufficient depth of water to keep flowers in good condition. Eliminate these containers.

To the water in the container you choose, add a preservative which controls the growth of the bacteria that thrive in vegetation-filled water. A preservative adds several days to the life of cut flowers.

Now recut flower stems to the length you wish for your arrangements. Cut with a sharp knife so you do not tear plant tissues and cut under water. A wide bowl filled to the brim will permit this. Cutting under water keeps air from plant cells. Stripping off leaves that would be below the water line also prolongs the life of flowers.

After you have followed these steps a time or two and seen how much longer the lovely tinue to be lovely, you'll make blooms from your garden con-them your routine.

To do a good job a gardener needs the right tools. And it is a big mistake not to buy high grade tools from the beginning.

Bargain counter grade tools bend, loose their edge, handles may snap and are often cumbersome as well as short-lived, while real tools go on indefinitely doing a good job say the horticulturists of Union Fork and Hoe Company, Columbus, Ohio.

ONE WAY to tell a good tool is by the neatly ground edge. Another is the straight grain in the handle and the over-all good workmanship as well as a good, strong, shank, if one is present.

Garden Page

Also, the reputable manufacturer is not ashamed to put his name and, sometimes, his address where all may see it — not merely a high-sounding brand name. Finally, there is often a "ring" to a proper tool when tapped with a hard object.

NOW COMES the job of deciding which to acquire first, for it is not every gardener that can buy all his tools at one time. Perhaps, the best single all-around tool for the gardener is the round pointed, long-handled shovel.

With it he can dig up the soil, level surfaces, cut roots, or skim out weeds. It also has a long reach which gives it great flexibility. And don't forget a long line of cord for making edges and beds.

Your first purchase should also include an all-purpose, green thumb steel garden rake and a standard trowel.

With them should also come a medium-width garden hoe as well as a lawn or turf edger, a mower, wheel barrow or cart and a watering can.

THESE ARE about the minimum for successful gardening. Of course, if the lady of the house will do most of the gardening, it is well to buy "junior" or "lady's" size tools instead of full-size to make handling easier.

The second year it might be well to add a steel, broom-type lawn rake, a narrow or triangular hoe for getting into small places. With them should come a hand weeder, lawn and pruning shears, as well as a grass hook or sickle and a hose with a sprinkler.

For added digging add a spading fork or spade—the first for stony, rocky soils, and the latter for more amenable ones. For those who are not sure, a spade is a somewhat narrow, straight-edged, deep shovel, excellent for digging up plants, sod or turning over the garden.

IN YOUR third year or third purchase, whenever it is, fill in with optional time-savers. First, there is the long-handled cultivator which eliminates much bending. Next you might add a grass whip, hedge or grass shears, a narrow trowel or bulb planter for setting out bulbs, and "asparagus knife" weeder and anything else that pleases your fancy.

In any case, you are now ready to tackle almost any garden job that comes along and have the equipment with which to handle it.

CHECKLIST FOR MARIN GARDENERS

The Marin gardener's checklist for the coming week:

- Plant annuals for winter color now. Stocks, snapdragons, calendulas, pansies, violas and sweet peas top the list.
- When chrysanthemums start to show color in the bud hold off on any further feeding. Make sure mums are well staked.
- Gladiolus that bloomed early should be lifted when the tops brown off. Store them in a cool place.
- Plant Sasanqua Camellias this month so you can enjoy their early bloom — usually they start in October.
- On blackberry vines, canes that bore this year's crop should be cut to the ground. New canes can then be trained on the trellis.

Save Steps When Remodeling Kitchen

If you're remodeling your kitchen, don't begin and end with appliances. There are other considerations as important to kitchen efficiency as the latest model range.

Since the kitchen is primarily a workroom, it should have a time-and-step-saving layout, spacious work counters, sufficient and convenient storage and easy-to-clean surfaces.

Because a homemaker spends most of her time there, the kitchen should also be comfortable and attractive.

Here are suggestions for an efficient work-saving kitchen:

LAYOUT — Most experts favor the "work triangle" design. This means placing the three work centers —cooking, clean-up and refrigerator —at approximately equidistant points of a triangle, with no more than seven feet between each major appliance. Tests show that this arrangement substantially cuts time and backtracking while providing plenty of elbow room.

WALLS — Plastic-surfaced hardboard paneling is a practical choice for hard-wear kitchen walls. The material is sturdy, stain and mar-resistant, and can be kept clean with a damp cloth. The panels also resist moisture and the high-humidity conditions common in kitchens. They are available in a variety of prefinished woodgrains, decorator colors, simulated tiles, patterns and textures.

WORKSPACE — There should be at least 30 inches of countertop area near the sink for dishes and food preparation; about 18 inches on the latch side of the refrigerator, so you can set down food; and about 24 inches of heat-resistant work surface alongside the range for pots and pans.

STORAGE — Place overhead cupboards at a convenient height so there will be a minimum of reaching and climbing on step stools. Modern cabinets rarely extend to the ceiling. For additional storage, build a handy working wall with a panel of perforated hardboard which can be applied with adhesive or nailed to furring strips to allow ⅜ inch clearance in back. When fitted with hooks, the storage wall holds pots, pans, cooking forks, ladles and the like — items that are continually used and should be kept at hand.

The Handyman's Page

SINCE MOST artists prefer to create their own frames, lumber yards and leading hardware stores now sell four and six foot lengths of carved and plain moldings that insure professional quality results. Anyone who follows simplified directions can make frames to any size at considerable savings. The framing available runs from finely carved moldings to simple, broad bands that lend themselves to oil paintings or water colors. With a little practice, observation and effort, picture framing can be developed into a fine art. Since everyone needs new frames, they are highly acceptable gifts. You can get tips by sending 50 cents to the Independent-Journal, P.O. Box 215, Briarcliff Manor, N.Y., and asking for Easi-Bild's Picture Frame Pattern No. 97.

Old Door Still Has Many Uses

Doors are versatile things, and can be turned into all kinds of furniture pieces, in addition to serving their originally intended purpose.

For instance, if you have a surplus flush door, you can use it as a base for a sofa.

In addition to the door, you will need a latex foam rubber mattress, slipcovers and a set of six sturdy legs.

A seven-foot door will serve the purpose admirably.

One leg should be attached to each corner, and one in the middle on each side. The slip-covered mattress is then placed on the platform.

There are many possible variations, including use of pincore foam, sold in thicknesses up to six-inches, instead of a finished mattress.

Your homemade sofa will be comfortable, and ideal for use in the family room or the den.

There's Place For Small Decks

When most people plan a new patio or deck, they consider generous size of prime importance. And it is grand to have a good, big outdoor living area.

Yet, there is a definite place for the small deck, too. It's often the perfect answer to providing an outdoor annex for one specific room of the house, or it may prove to be just the right way to develop a forlorn corner — one that doesn't do much for either the house or the yard.

FOR EXAMPLE, many older homes have a small, projecting wing that houses a den or library. Outside, the ell formed where wing and main house join can be a "nothing" nook — not good garden space and not very useful or attractive otherwise.

But tuck a small, floor-level deck into this nook, install French doors, if there are none, opening to the deck from adjoining rooms, include broad steps connecting deck to garden, and the whole picture changes.

Suddenly, there's communication between indoors and outdoors, a good flow of usable space, sensible access to the garden from that corner of the house —plus a delightful spot to stop and sit a while in sun or shade.

If one of the adjoining rooms happens to be the dining room, you get a bonus, for the deck will quickly become a favorite place at mealtime.

CHOOSING a deck for this type of corner is logical, since it can be easily built to the level of interior floors. That's important because people more consistently use a floor-level deck than a patio built just two steps lower, on a level with the yard.

RCA Increases Prices of 1968 Color TV Sets
BUT NOT AT YOUNG BROS.
Radio Corp. of America announced yesterday factory price increases for 1968 model color television sets effective September 1.
"The increases were made necessary by steadily rising labor and material costs," said Raymond W. Saxon, Vice President and General Manager of RCA Victor Home Instruments Division.
Saxon said indications are that industry color set sales this year will run substantially ahead of the record 4.7 million sold in 1966.

SHOOT 'EM UPS

Westerns Return To Old Formula

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — When television's new thundering herd of westerns gallops onto home screens in the next few weeks, the name of the game will be action-fights, chases, rescues, damsels in distress, black-hearted villains, brave heroes.

The minds who dream up series ideas are back to basic ingredients of the classic western.

It is easy to see why last season's variations of the familiar format will be missing: Not one of the innovators survived.

ANOTHER U. S. marshal will be riding onto the CBS range in the 90-minute "Cimarron Strip" to police territory south of "Gunsmoke's" Dodge City and Marshal Dillon.

And the outsize western has proved itself over the past five successful seasons of NBC's "The Virginian."

"Hondo," an ABC effort, is based on a successful John Wayne horse opera. Its star, Ralph Taeger, a man in the Wayne mold, plays a loner who is quick on the draw but trying, of course, to bring peace to the Arizona territory.

No one will make the mistake of last season's "Shane," a watered-down adaptation of an exciting movie about a retired gun-fighter. The trouble with that series was that he stayed retired, and the series soon was, too.

NO ONE, this time out, is attempting to make heroes out of the sodbusters, respectable and worthy as those agriculturally minded pioneers were. Both "The Road West" and "The Montroes" bit the dust like an Indian raiding party last season because they were long on sentiment and scenery but lacked action.

David Dortort, who created "Bonanza," is coming in with another of his patented western creations, this called "High Chaparral," on NBC. His specialty is the family group around whom he constructs all the familiar western makings.

This time it will be two brothers and the son of one of them. Instead of the Ponderosa of the Cartwrights in Nevada, the action will be around post-Civil War Tucson. The problem will be Mexican bandits and Apache Indians.

"Dundee and the Culhane" on CBS seems to have its inspiration in both old "Have Gun—Will Travel" and "The Defenders."

THERE will be a pair of lawyers — one mature and wise, one young and quick with fist and gun — who wander the Old West and wind up with a trial of some sort in each episode. But not before some bad guys make trouble.

"The Legend of Custer" on ABC will move into that glamorous territory on the side of the cavalry, with the controversial victim of Little Big Horn played in dashing, heroic style, and any relationship to the original is coincidental. No one this season is going to get funny with the Old West.

Humor proved disastrous in the case of "Laredo," on NBC which lasted — but barely — for two seasons, and ABC's "The Rounders" and "Rango," neither of which survived beyond 13 weeks each.

That leaves CBS's "Wild, Wild West" as the only light-hearted treatment, but the actors play their mad adventures straight and the humor is in the mind of the beholder.
